SEOUL TALK—Visiting Vice-President Agnew conferring yesterday with South Korean President Chung Hee Park.

Senate Rejects Move to End Draft, Create Volunteer Army

By Spencer Rich
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (WP)—The Senate today rejected, on a 55-40 roll call, a Pentagon-sponsored amendment to boost military recruitment and move toward creation of an all-volunteer army by next July.

The White House and the Defense Department, in letters to the Senate Armed Services Committee, urged the amendment. It would boost military costs $3 billion this year without giving any increase in manpower needs beyond July 1.

Sen. McGovern, Sen. Hatfield, and other sponsors were said to be "inclined" to adopt the new version. They will announce their final decision tomorrow. The Nixon administration opposes the amendment.

All these amendments, and today's defeated volunteer-army proposal as well, are being offered to the $11.2 billion defense procurement bill. Another amendment expected to be offered—proposed by Sen. William Proxmire, D., Wis.—would put a ceiling on overall military spending of $66 billion, which is $5.2 billion below the administration's proposed figure.

The Hatfield-Goldwater amendment was based on the Feb. 21 House bill, which set a deadline for the President to report to Congress on the draft, and the bill set a deadline for the President to report to Congress on the draft.

Koreans Press Agnew Over Arms Support

By Lee Lescaze
SEOUL, Wednesday, Aug. 26 (WP)—Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew and South Korean President Chung Hee Park met again today at a hastily scheduled breakfast after unexpected misunderstandings spiked their talks yesterday.

Mr. Agnew and Mr. Park emerged from almost eight hours of talks in two sessions yesterday with no public statements, except a terse Korean announcement which said that the talks had been "sincere and frank."

The Vice-President told waiting reporters in his hotel lobby at one point during the day that the talks were going "very well." However, American and Korean sources said that they were not.

All accounts of the meeting agreed that Mr. Agnew was unprepared for the specific questioning he received from President Park on what action the United States will take to bolster the Korean armed forces in compensation for the planned withdrawal of 20,000 U.S. troops now based here.

The Korean leader refused to accept Mr. Agnew's general references to increased U.S. military aid and listened impatiently to the Vice-President's account of domestic pressures in the United States which made the troop withdrawal necessary this year, according to Korean sources.

After Mr. Agnew had finished his opening statement at what was scheduled to be a two-hour meeting with Mr. Park, the Koreans began close questioning aimed at pinning the United States to grants of specific numbers of dollars and weapons.

The talks, which began only with Mr. Agnew, Mr. Park and interpreters present, were enlarged on both sides to include, among others, U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter and Korean Foreign Minister Kim Dae-nim.

Senate, Spurred by Meany, Votes to Cut Off ILO Funds

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (WP)—Responding to a plea from AFL-CIO President George Meany, the Senate voted 49 to 22 yesterday to cut off U.S. contributions to the International Labor Organization because Russian Pavel Astasenko had been appointed to a key job as assistant director.

The vote to kill the remaining $8.7 million in the U.S. contribution for the ILO overrode a complaint by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R., N.Y., that it would violate an international court ruling—made at the request of the United States—which held that United Nations members were liable for UN assessments even for agencies whose policies were disliked by the members.

AFL-CIO President Meany, in an appearance before a House subcommittee on July 23, said the Communist regularly denounced the U.S. as ILO sessions, and the appointment of Mr. Astasenko to a high job by the new British ILO chief was the last straw. Mr. Meany charged that Mr. Astasenko "will use that position to make each and every employee a Communist agent whether he wants to be or not."

Other Senate votes

In another action yesterday, the Senate beat back by a vote of 44 to 26 a proposal by Sen. William Proxmire, D., Wis., to slash out the $401,400 appropriation for the Subversive Activities Control Board, which Sen. Proxmire and other critics said was practically moribund and served little useful purpose.

This vote and the vote on ILO funds came just before the Senate gave routine 64-10-1 passage to an appropriations bill carrying $3.1 billion for the departments of State, Justice and Commerce and

U.S. Trade Surplus Shows Sharp Gain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—For the second month in a row, U.S. foreign trade figures show a substantial surplus of exports over imports.

July figures released today by the Commerce Department showed that exports exceeded imports by $441 million. A $486-million surplus was registered in June. For the two-month period combined, the trade surplus was running at an annual rate of more than $5 billion. The surplus in 1968 and 1969 was about $1 billion.

U.S. in War on Environment in Vietnam, Senator Charges

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—Gaylord Nelson, D., Wis., said today that the United States is waging forests and killing crops South Vietnam in an "intolerable kind of chemical warfare" that prove disastrous to the region's people.

By engaging in warfare on the environment, this country has in the leadership in conducting long-range warfare on man, his future generations, friends and enemy alike," said Sen. Nelson.

He issued the statement in opposition of a Senate amendment to ban U.S. use of herbicides as a weapon of war in Vietnam elsewhere.

It would prohibit the use of plant-destroying chemicals, forbid their transfer to other nations, and call for elimination of present stockpiles of the defoliating agents.

Sen. Nelson said the United States has sprayed more than 100 million pounds of chemicals over more than 55 million acres of Vietnam, to defoliate forests and kill food crops allegedly grown to supply enemy forces.

He said that amounting to six pounds of chemicals for every man, woman and child in Vietnam.

The Senate Armed Services Committee opposes the amendment, which may face a vote tomorrow.

Reds Again Halted in Cambodia

Defeated in Drive On Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia, Aug. 25 (UPI)—Cambodian troops early today broke up another major Communist assault against Phnom Penh's defensive network after seven hours of close-quarter fighting against superior numbers of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

Military spokesmen said 1,500 Cambodian defenders halted the attack by an estimated 3,000 Communist troops shortly before dawn at a point nine miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The communists said the Communist troops left behind "numerous bodies" as yet uncounted.

The battle at Prek Tameak was the second in less than a week. In fighting there six days ago, the Cambodian command said its forces killed 500 Communist troops at a cost of 19 government dead.

In Saigon, meanwhile, the U.S. command announced today that a 125-man Marine unit began departing the base at Da Nang over the weekend as part of the Phase Four withdrawal. The unit is the 1st Force Reconnaissance Co., 3d Marine Amphibious Force, which is leaving for Camp Pendleton, Calif.

U.S. military spokesmen announced completion of a Marine operation called "Picket's Forest" launched July 16 in an area 33 miles southwest of Da Nang in Quang Nam Province.

The spokesmen said two battalions of Marines involved in the sweep of a Communist base-camp area killed 64 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and "detained" 281. Marine losses were two dead and 54 wounded, the spokesmen reported.

Peace Talks On; Jarring Meets Mideast Envoys

By Tad Szulc
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Aug. 25 (NYT)—The most concerted diplomatic effort in 22 years to bring a formal peace settlement to the Middle East was launched here today amid guarded expressions of optimism by all the parties.

This new and thus far apparently most promising phase in the long history of Middle Eastern peace-making attempts opened at the UN headquarters building when Gunnar V. Jarring, the special representative for the Middle East of Secretary-General U Thant, conferred in separate sessions with the representatives of Israel, Jordan and Egypt.

Mr. Jarring told newsmen that he was "cautiously optimistic" and "definitely" more so than a year ago, while Israel's Ambassador Yosef Tekoah, Jordan's Ambassador Abdul Hamid Sharaf and Egypt's Ambassador Hassan el-Zayyat said after meeting successively with Mr. Jarring that their governments were determined to do everything possible to achieve success in the current talks.

Tekoah Going to Israel

Although Mr. Jarring set a lively pace for his activities today in conferring with all the three envoys, the rhythm of the peace talks here is expected to slow down during the balance of the week as a result of Mr. Tekoah's departure for Jerusalem this evening for consultations with his government.

Mr. Tekoah said he would be away from New York for "the time it takes for the consultations"—he would not say how long they may last—and indicated that Israel would not be represented in his absence by other diplomats in talks with Mr. Jarring.

The delicacy and complexity of the new discussions—held against the background of a tenuous truce between Israel and Jordan and Egypt since Aug. 7—were quickly emphasized by Mr. Tekoah.

Emerging from his second conference during the day with Mr. Jarring, the Israeli diplomat said that "one of the best ways" for the Arabs "to prove their sincerity and desire for peace would be to terminate their violations of the cease-fire."

Israel has charged that Egypt has repeatedly violated the truce by moving forward anti-aircraft missile batteries into the cease-fire zone on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal.

In a letter of complaint distributed here today and addressed to Ambassador Eugeniusz Kulaga of Poland, this month's president of the Security Council, Mr. Tekoah accused Jordan of allowing 105 "acts of aggression" to be launched against Israel from its territory since the beginning of the cease-fire.

Those attacks apparently consisted of shelling of Israeli border settlements by Palestinian guerrillas. Questioned by news-

Truce Reciprocal, Eban Warns

JERUSALEM, Aug. 25 (UPI)—Foreign Minister Abba Eban said today Israel may adopt a tit-for-tat policy in the face of Egyptian violations of the Aug. 7 cease-fire.

Mr. Eban was replying in the Knesset (parliament) to motions filed by three opposition parties, including the hawkish Gahal bloc, seeking to air the current crisis in Israeli-Arab relations over the Egyptian-Soviet buildup in the Suez Canal zone.

Mr. Eban said Israel has so far filed five complaints alleging "grave" Egyptian violations of the cease-fire implicit in the Egyptian peace plan.

He said Egypt's violations of the cease-fire created an entirely new military balance of power in the Middle East. They also place a question mark on any further pledges or commitments the Soviet Union and Egypt may make, he said. Israel might consider that further Soviet-Egyptian commitments contain a guarantee against further breaches, he said.

Mr. Eban said Israel was maintaining contacts with the United States on the problem. He told parliament the American-Israeli dialogue centered around three points:

- The Israeli demand that the United States exert pressure on the Soviet Union to restore the military status quo in the Suez Canal zone by removing newly installed SAM-2 missile batteries.
- U.S. recognition of the urgency of Israeli requests for additional weaponry in the face of the Egyptian cease-fire violations.
- That the observance of the military standstill in the Suez Canal zone is reciprocal. He thus intimated that if infringements of the cease-fire continue, Israel might strike back.

Replying to critics as to why Israel appointed a representative to the first round of the Middle East peace talks in New York under UN envoy Gunnar V. Jarring before the problem of Egyptian violations of the cease-fire was resolved, Mr. Eban said Israel stood to gain nothing by delaying the appointment.

"This would not have removed any single Soviet battery nor enhanced Israel's military position," he said.

"There is no substitute for an agreed peace," he said.

Alluding to Sen. J. William Fulbright's suggestion of American guarantees for Israel's pre-1967 boundaries, Mr. Eban said: "The only solution is a contractual and binding peace settlement. Any plan to return to the June 4, 1967, borders and the return of the Arab refugees to Palestine would endanger Israel's security."

The house, by an overwhelming vote, accepted Mr. Eban's suggestions that the motions be referred for discussion to the parliamentary Foreign, Affairs and Security Committee.

Referring to recent Israeli complaints over alleged Egyptian cease-fire violations, Mr. Eban said:

"We know that the United States has taken up our complaints with Cairo and we also know the United States is convinced that our complaints are well substantiated."

He said Israel would continue to expose Egyptian violations of the cease-fire as "one of the means of preventing their recurrence."

Mr. Eban said: "There can be no withdrawal of Israeli troops from occupied Arab lands until the establishment of secure and recognized borders, and no soldier would leave his post until a contractual peace is concluded."

Arab Guerrillas Reach Out to World's Far-Left Militants

Black Panthers, Chinese, Cubans to Attend Meeting of Palestinian National Council

By Eric Pace
AMMAN, Aug. 25 (NYT)—The Arab commando leadership, which feels a growing sense of isolation in the midst of the current efforts toward a Middle East peace settlement, is attaching increasing importance to the support of ultramilitants around the world.

This was underlined yesterday by the latest issue of the commando newspaper, Fatah, which said a group of Black Panthers from the United States was visiting Jordan and would attend this week's meeting of the Palestinian National Council, along with representatives of Communist China and North Korea.

The 115-man council, which says it represents all the 1.5 million Palestinians who live outside Israeli rule, convenes in Amman on Thursday. The meeting is being held to work out a Palestinian strategy against a Middle Eastern peace settlement.

Other visitors

In addition to the Chinese and North Koreans, official representatives from Albania, Cuba and North Vietnam are expected to attend.

Besides welcoming leftist visitors from Europe and the United States, the commando that the commandos feel with ultra-leftists are made up partly of shared anti-American and anti-Soviet teachings. Another, and important, ingredient is the old Arab view that "the enemy of my enemy is my friend."

Fatah did not name the Panther visitors, but it quoted one of them as having said, "There is a great similarity between the status of the Palestinian people and the status of the blacks... The Palestinian people represent the vanguard of the peoples in the Middle East area in the conflict with imperialism and racism."

The newspaper is published in Amman and distributed in Beirut and other Middle East capitals by the Palestine Liberation Organization, which comprises the ten main commando groups.

Fatah reported that the Black Panther group, which includes at least one woman, came to Amman Saturday night from Syria and is visiting the main commando organization, el-Fatah, for a few days. There was no indication how many are in the group.

Where the Black Panthers came from was not disclosed, but the Panthers grouped around Eldridge Cleaver, their fugitive minister of information, in Algeria have been in touch with the commando movement.

The main guerrilla leader, Yasser Arafat, was said by well-placed Palestinians to have met Cleaver in Algiers in the past, and some Panthers were reported to have been receiving training at el-Fatah camps in Jordan last year.

The el-Fatah spokesman, who is known as Wadie, said the Panthers were here "for a visit only."

Mr. Wadie denied published reports that the commandos had given the Panthers training last year. He said, "The revolutionary has to be trained by himself; it is very far from America to here."

Conditions Different

By this he meant that the conditions for mounting guerrilla warfare are different in the United States from what they are in this area. But he hastened to add, "This doesn't mean that the commandos won't

5 Young Poles Take Over Ship, Sail to Denmark

ROENNE, Denmark, Aug. 25 (UPI)—Five young Poles took over a Polish fishing trawler in the Baltic today and sailed the vessel to the Danish island of Bornholm, where they asked for political asylum, police said.

The Poles, between 18 and 24 years of age, said that they took over the trawler after a fight with the skipper and three other crewmen.

The defectors were brought to Copenhagen for questioning.

A police spokesman said that one of the crewmen aboard the trawler in Danzig, Poland, When they were one hour out to sea, the crewman and his friends appeared on deck and took over the vessel after a fight with the skipper and other crew members, the defectors said. The captain asked the Danish police to arrest the defectors but his request was turned down. The trawler later left Bornholm for Poland.

Two of the shock posters put up in an anti-drug campaign in England.

British Ad Drive Aims at Drug Dangers

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—“LSD can take you places you never dreamt of,” says the poster.

It shows a youth in a strait-jacket covering in the corner of a padded cell, undergoing treatment for addiction to the hallucinatory drug.

The picture is part of a stark campaign to shock schoolchildren and their parents into realizing the dangers of drug-taking.

National Lifeline, a charity consortium which cares for addicts and alcoholics, devised the black-and-white placards to strike out at early stages of drug usage which can lead to addiction.

One poster shows a writhing one-day-old baby. “He’s been a junkie all his life,” says the caption.

“This baby needs heroin the way most babies need milk,” the message reads. “He’s a registered dope addict. A victim of the drug scene. If he lives it will be a miracle.

“Unless people stop playing with drugs there’ll be a lot more babies born in this state. Because this is what happens when you start turning on for a laugh. Some laugh.”

Another poster advises parents to search their children’s pockets for pep pills.

“Some schoolkids pick things up very quickly,” says the legend on a picture of a boy with hooded eyes holding pills in his hands.

pick for sixpence a bag,” the message reads.

The LSD poster warns: “Lysergic acid diethylamide is a terrifyingly dangerous hallucinogenic drug. Used for kicks it can induce paranoia, hysteria, phobias, delusions, psychosis, hallucinations, manic depressions.”

The final picture in the series proclaims: “Try some purple hearts and you’ll see a new way of life.”

It shows three young men lying in a squalid room.

“We hope to shock the public into an awareness of the problem,” said a National Lifeline spokesman. He said 2,000 copies of each poster had been printed for youth clubs and schools “where we think they can have the best effect.”

Koreans Press Agnew Over Arms Support

Cuts in U.S. Troops Trigger Aid Demands

Not All Unhappy

It was evident that some Korean officials were not entirely unhappy at the snags which embarrassed Mr. Agnew on the first stop of his Asian tour. One official went out of his way to tell an American reporter that Mr. Agnew had to check with the White House for further instructions. This, the official indicated, was proper retribution for the United States having taken Korean needs too lightly.

Koreans make it clear that they feel the United States has moved too quickly in announcing the withdrawal of more than a third of its force before next July. “Koreans understand the Nixon doctrine,” one source remarked, “they just don’t feel it should apply to Korea.”

Again and again in conversations here, Koreans speak of a special relationship between the United States and Korea forged during the Korean War. Seoul’s foreign policy for the last 20 years has been built from the base of close ties with the United States.

Korean leaders point out with mixed pride and chagrin that this country is perhaps unique among American-aided nations in its absence of “Yankee Go Home” signs. The reward for that absence should be a special consideration, they believe.

Mr. Agnew began his visit to Korea by announcing that America will shift a wing of F-4 Phantom jets here from Japan and will soon give the Seoul government S-2 planes specially designed for detection of enemy ships at sea.

Promises Not Enough

However, it became quickly apparent when Mr. Agnew met with President Park yesterday that these promises had not taken the edge off Korean anxiety.

Mr. Park produced a list of weaponry that he wants for the South Korean Army. Navy and Air Force officials asked Mr. Agnew to discuss it with him by item. U.S. officials refused to comment on the topics discussed but acknowledged that the Koreans had been unexpectedly specific.

Mr. Agnew said publicly before arriving in Asia to reassure U.S. allies: “I’m not carrying any specific new instructions or innovations that have not already been communicated to the foreign leaders. The Korean government wanted him to put his high-level stamp of approval on decisions that Washington is not yet ready to take.

Although it is unlikely that Mr. Agnew will have to change his schedule to answer further questions at his next three stops as he has done here, Taiwan, South Vietnam and Thailand share with South Korea a general uneasiness about American withdrawals from Asia.

PRIVATE AUDIENCE—Pope Paul VI receiving Bishop James E. Walsh at his summer palace, south of Rome.

Pope Thanks Bishop Walsh For Service to Church, China

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 25 (UPI).—Pope Paul VI tearfully thanked the Most Rev. James E. Walsh today for “all you have done and suffered” during a lifetime of missionary work and imprisonment in China.

Both the Pope and Bishop Walsh were in tears during a 45-minute audience for the American bishop, who was released last month after 12 years of solitary confinement in a Shanghai jail.

Bishop Walsh, 79, had never even heard of Pope Paul when he crossed the Hong Kong border in a checked shirt and baggy trousers, on July 10. Today he sat before the Pontiff to hear a moving speech of gratitude and praise.

“Today you have returned from your mission—more faithful than your mission—expected. It is the Pope who receives you back and who thanks you in the name of Christ for all you have done and suffered.”

Two of the bishop’s sisters, Mrs. Julia Werner and Miss Mary Walsh from Cumberland, Md., stood nearby. They also were in tears.

“We want to tell you today that our joy is great to have you with us,” the Pope said. “We assure you of our special and deepest affection in the Christ who called you and sustained you in your trials.”

The Pope told Bishop Walsh: “We know that your sufferings have not been in vain but that they are like seeds of Christian virtue that will grow up in God’s good time. The extent of their value is known only to the Lord.”

“We are confident also that the example of your effective and persevering love will help you to show to the world, and especially to the young, the greatness of the missionary calling.”

“Guerrilla Action”

TEL AVIV, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Arab guerrillas went into action several times today, throwing a grenade which wounded three persons in Gaza, sabotaging the electric power supply to the Red Sea port of Eilat, and firing on a police border patrol in the Jordan Valley, an army spokesman said.

Eilat was momentarily plunged into darkness early today when an electric pylon was sabotaged north of the town in the Negev desert, the spokesman added. An emergency generator in the port resumed power.

Southern Lebanese March To Protest Israeli Incursion

BEIRUT, Aug. 25 (UPI).—Some 200 south Lebanese villagers demonstrated in the streets of Beirut today demanding army protection against repeated Israeli attacks.

The villagers came from Chebaa, 15 miles inside Lebanese territory, which was the scene of an Israeli armed incursion earlier today.

The villagers blocked a main road in Beirut’s residential area, which houses the offices of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and smashed a few cars.

They said that the march was staged near the PLO offices in protest of the villagers’ feelings against Palestinian guerrilla attacks on Israel from Lebanese territory. Such attacks usually invite Israeli reprisals.

As the demonstrators burned tires and erected barricades in the streets, Palestinian guerrillas armed with automatic rifles took positions in the balconies of the nearby PLO offices. The marchers, however, did not turn their anger against them.

The demonstrators, including women and children carrying their belongings with them, declared they would not return to their native village unless they were assured of army protection.

A Lebanese military spokesman said the Israelis pounded the village and its surrounding area with artillery early today, destroying four homes and damaging another four. He said the Israelis later sent in troops across the border to blow up six more houses on the outskirts of the village.

There were no casualties, the spokesman added.

[An Israeli military spokesman today declined to comment on the Beirut report a Reuters dispatch said.]

“All I can say is that our routine patrol activity continues along the border,” the spokesman added.

He confirmed an increase of Arab guerrilla activities on the Israel-Lebanon border in the last few weeks.

Israel has launched seven ground and air attacks against Lebanon since the Middle East cease-fire went into effect Aug. 8, military sources said.

A delegation representing the marchers later called on the Foreign Ministry, where a high ministry official promised to put their case to the next meeting of the Lebanese cabinet.

Meanwhile, the situation in the southern Lebanese town of Sidon remained tense today after clashes yesterday between Palestinian guerrillas and followers of the pro-Nasser deputy of the area, Maarouf Saad.

Two persons were killed in those clashes and four were wounded. Mr. Saad, who is also chairman of the town government, said the guerrillas were demanding his resignation as condition for a cease-fire. But he indicated he would not give up his posts.

There were no reports of armed exchanges today.

TEL AVIV, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Arab guerrillas went into action several times today, throwing a grenade which wounded three persons in Gaza, sabotaging the electric power supply to the Red Sea port of Eilat, and firing on a police border patrol in the Jordan Valley, an army spokesman said.

Czechoslovakia Reopens Borders

VIENNA, Aug. 25 (UPI).—Czechoslovakia reopened its borders to foreign tourists today, after ten days of restrictions in the wake of the unexpectedly quiet passing last Friday of the second anniversary of the Warsaw Pact invasion.

Savarian border police said that as of midnight Monday Czechoslovak authorities lifted a ban of students, newsmen, clergy, lawyers, foreign military personnel and Czechs living abroad.

Eastern news agencies reported a mass police round-up and arrest of “criminal and anti-social elements” during the days around the invasion anniversary.

London Hilton Arms Haul Leads to Search for Source

LONDON, Aug. 25 (AP).—Scotland Yard instigated a worldwide search today for the source of arms and ammunition captured in a raid on the London Hilton hotel. The weapons were believed destined for Middle East guerrillas.

While Special Branch detectives—experts in security investigations—checked movements of leading members of underground groups, police charged an American and two Lebanese men with possession of illegal firearms seized at the Hilton last night.

They identified the men as David Meiternman, of New York, Fouad Antoun, of Beirut, a stamp dealer, and Hassan Russam, of London, a travel agent. All are 34. The three were scheduled to appear tomorrow at Bow Street magistrate’s court to answer charges that they possessed firearms without authority reasonable excuse or permit.

After a three-hour stake-out, Scotland Yard detectives seized three cartons containing five sub-machine guns, pistols and 1,548 rounds of ammunition. A Scotland Yard statement said this arms cache in the hotel baggage room had been traced to the possession of Mr. Meiternman, Mr. Antoun and Mr. Hussam.

Police declined to explain what caused a flurry of additional raids on downtown London buildings early today. Detectives would not disclose the results of the raids.

Ballistics experts examined the Hilton haul closely. Unofficial reports said the guns were American-made and new.

They included two Browning automatic pistols and a .38-caliber Cobra revolver as well as the sub-machine guns and bullets. One theory made this a sample lot en route to Middle East guerrillas to stimulate future sales.

Security organizations at international airports were among the contacts made today by Scotland Yard detectives, who wanted to know the recent movements of underground guerrilla leaders.

Boasting speculation that the Hilton seizure was part of a Middle East gun-run plot was the confiscation in Amman of 104 Browning pistols. They were taken from suitcases on a plane from London that had stopped at Rome.

Only a handful of guests in the 27-story Hilton were aware of the 50-man arms swoop last night. Disguised in hotel uniforms, detectives worked as attendants, bellhops, waiters and bartenders. Others paced the lobby with tourist cameras swinging from their necks, before the arrests were made.

Christina Winkhaus, 32, who was in the suite across the hall from the rooms where detectives arrested the three men, said she heard only a little loud talking, a single shout and a voice: “Let’s go.”

“Reds Protesting Heinemann Visit”

BERLIN, Aug. 25 (AP).—West German President Gustav Heinemann flew into West Berlin today for a working visit despite protests by the surrounding East German Communists.

Mr. Heinemann will stay until Saturday. He arrived by U.S. Air Force plane as is the custom.

The East German Foreign Ministry issued a statement last week protesting Mr. Heinemann’s visit in line with Communist claims that West Berlin has no ties with West Germany.

750,000 Australians Strike To Protest National Budget

SYDNEY, Aug. 25 (AP).—Industry throughout Australia came to a virtual halt today as 750,000 workers—according to a union estimate—staged a strike against last week’s federal budget.

But protest rallies held in the state capitals stopped. Of 150,000 unionists who joined in the strike in Sydney, fewer than 3,000 attended a meeting in the city center. It was a similar story in Melbourne, despite a speech by Robert J. Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trades Unions, in which he called for a three-hour strike.

Bus services in New South Wales, Victoria and Queensland were stopped—and city traffic moved with more ease than normal.

Strongest support for the strike came from the waterfront, the building industry, transport and metal trades workers, printers and coal miners.

Many workers did not bother to return to work but took a half-day holiday. Understaffed pubs also hit by the strike, nevertheless reported booming business.

The Trades Union Council called for the stoppage to demand “taxation justice.” It is also seeking an increase in old-age pensions, which were increased in the budget by 50 cents to $15.50 ($17.38 U.S.), a week for single pensioners.

Federal Treasurer Leslie Bury cut income tax for lower and middle income earners by 10 percent, but increased indirect taxation with duty rises on cigarettes, gasoline and wine.

A strike by garbage collectors in Sydney—unconnected with the ACTU stoppage—continued into the second day today.

Farmers Protest in India

CALCUTTA, Aug. 25 (AP).—More than 50,000 farmers carrying red flags and bamboo sticks demonstrated in front of Government House here today, demanding land for the landless, homes for the homeless, and steps to increase the government-fixed minimum price of jute.

Chile Riot Injures Housing Chief’s Son

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Riot police fought a four-hour pitched battle with striking health workers here last night while tension built up before presidential elections on Sept. 4.

The 12-year-old son of Housing Minister Andres Donoso, meanwhile, underwent an emergency operation for a fractured skull after demonstrators—apparently leftists—stoned him and his father as they drove through Santiago last night.

The minister escaped unhurt but the condition of young Juan Francisco Donoso was grave.

The police finally dispersed the strikers with tear gas and drove them away from the city center. They arrested ten persons.

Bonn Loses Starfighter

GLUECKSBURG, West Germany, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—A West German Navy Starfighter TF-104G training jet crashed today shortly after taking off from a north German airfield, a navy spokesman said. The two pilots ejected safely.

It was the 122d Starfighter the West German armed forces have lost since the American-designed aircraft was brought into regular service in 1961.

Pentagon Drops Costly Plan For Hard-Rock Missile Sites

By Michael Geller

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (UPI)—The 1,000-missile Minuteman force, economic and diplomatic considerations have caused the Defense Department to drop a multimillion-dollar plan to protect the nation's land-based inter-continental ballistic missile force by moving several hundred Minuteman missiles into new "hard-rock" underground sites.

Once placed in such sites, the Minuteman would be virtually invulnerable to anything but a direct hit by improved versions of Soviet missiles.

Instead, the Air Force is expected to propose to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird this week a speedier and less expensive plan for reinforcing the existing sites.

5 of 9 Resign From Youth Panel in N.Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (UPI)—Five of the nine members of the Selective Service System's Youth Advisory Committee here resigned yesterday to protest the Nixon administration's policies on youth in general and the military draft in particular.

A spokesman for the Selective Service System said that as far as he knew it was the first publicly announced protest resignation from the nationwide system of 56 Youth Advisory Committees, set up by President Nixon in June, 1968.

The program was designed, in the President's words, to foster "a better informed and more responsible draft mechanism" and to "dispel illusions about the conscription process which are now held by many of our younger citizens."

"War on the Young"

At a news conference at Selective Service headquarters here, the five resigning from the New York City advisory group contended that the Nixon administration has "declared war on the young people of America."

The five—Milton Golden, Grayson Brown, Carmen Luciano, Jose Sanchez and Brittan Chang—also protested the administration's request to Congress to abolish student deferments. They said, too, that the administration is not acting sufficiently to inform draft-eligible young men of their rights and alternatives and not moving vigorously enough in behalf of an all-volunteer army.

Each state has a Youth Advisory Committee, as do New York City, the District of Columbia and several territories.

No Drug Party at Tate Home, Coroner's Testimony Indicates

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25 (UPI)—A Los Angeles coroner testified yesterday that blood tests showed no indication that either Miss Tate or her husband, Dr. Charles Manson, had been using drugs or alcohol at the time of the slayings.

There had been speculation that a drug party was under way at the Tate estate in August, 1969, when intruders knifed and shot the occupants of the mansion. Dr. Noguchi testified that such a party was not in progress.

Women to Launch 'Offensive' Today in War Between Sexes

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP)—Rallying round the goals of equal job opportunity, free abortions and 24-hour child care centers, a group of American women made final plans today for tomorrow's "strike for equality." One liberation leader predicted, "This nation will no longer be quite the same" after the demonstrations.

The National Women's Strike Coalition—with representatives of diverse feminist groups—planned to announce the names of four major corporations whose advertising, the women say, is offensive and degrading, and whose products should be boycotted.

The feminist cause got a boost yesterday when Philadelphia Mayor James Tate proclaimed tomorrow "Women's Rights Day." Pittsburgh Mayor Peter Flaherty issued a similar proclamation earlier.

The date for tomorrow's strike was chosen to coincide with the 50th anniversary of final ratification of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote.

The demonstrations will take a variety of forms. There will be the traditional rallies, speeches, marches and workshops in many areas, including New York, Washington, Detroit and Boston.

In addition, however, women are being urged not to perform household chores they consider menial—"don't iron while the strike is hot"—to bring their children to their husbands' offices and to reject the role of consumer and stop buying for one day.

Counter-demonstrations were planned by some women who said they're liberal enough. A group called MOM—Men Our Master—dubbed tomorrow "preserve femininity day."

"Man Is Not the Enemy"

BOSTON, Aug. 25 (UPI)—Feminist leader Betty Friedan predicts millions of American women will demonstrate for equal rights with men tomorrow, "on a scale none of us dared dream of even two years ago."

After this day, nothing in this country will be quite the same again," she promised while launching National Women's Strike Week Sunday night in Boston before some 250 cheering women and a scattering of men.

"Man is not the enemy," said the author of the best-selling "The Feminine Mystique" and the founder of the National Organization of Women (NOW). "Man is a fellow victim. We will end the war between the sexes by ending the conditions that make women bitter."

By allowing men and women to see each other as people, not as object or oppressor," Mrs. Friedan promised.

U.S. Backs Bid To Bury Black in White Cemetery

MIAMI, Aug. 25 (UPI)—The Justice Department entered the case today of a black soldier killed in Vietnam but denied burial in an all-white cemetery in Florida.

U.S. Attorney Robert W. Rust, at the request of Attorney General John N. Mitchell, joined the suit as a "friend of the court." The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People filed suit yesterday in an attempt to force Hillcrest Cemetery of Fort Pierce, Fla., to bury Spec. 4 Frederick Eugene Williams, the black soldier.

The Justice Department and the NAACP will join forces to argue the case in federal court Thursday.

Spec. 4 Williams, 30, was killed by mortar fire Aug. 8 in Vietnam. His mother, Mary Campbell, and a newspaper advertisement in which Hillcrest offered free burial for all servicemen killed in Vietnam. But the cemetery took back the offer when it learned Spec. 4 Williams was black.

Senators Told To End Deals On New Cars

Ethics Unit Assails Auto Industry Leases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (UPI)—The Senate Ethics Committee today told senators leasing new cars at cut-rate prices to stop accepting the generous offer of the auto industry.

In an "advisory recommendation," the committee told the senators to end their arrangements "at or before the end of the model year" and added that "these leases should not be renewed."

Chairman John C. Stennis, D., Miss., read the committee's unanimous ruling to a heavily attended session of the Senate.

At least 24 senators—14 of them publicly identified—have lease arrangements with automakers, according to a recent UPI survey.

The breakdown showed that 23 senators are leasing either top-of-the-line or Lincoln Continental for between $750 and $900 a year. Another is leasing a Mercury Marquis for $600.

Comparable leases for the ordinary driver would run between $2,000 and $4,000 a year, according to commercial sources.

The committee report said "it appears that the price paid by a senator is considerably less than that which would have to be paid by the ordinary person making the same type of lease."

But the committee added it found "no evidence to suggest that these leases with senators were a means for the automobile companies to exercise influence."

"Nor did we find any indication that the automobile companies or their representatives received any favorable treatment from senators or assistants to senators because of favorable lease terms."

U.S. Catholics To Issue New Text of Bible

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26 (UPI)—Roman Catholics will get a new translation of the Bible in modern English next month to replace the Douay version that has been in use for 220 years, a team of editors disclosed here yesterday.

The translation, to be known as the New American Bible, will be published on Sept. 30. Parts of it are already familiar to Roman Catholics because of their use in the revised English mass.

The new version is the product of 35 years of work by 11 scholars, including four Protestants.

The Roman Catholic Bible will be the second major publication of its kind this year. In March, the first totally new English translation of the Bible by Protestant churches since the 1611 King James Version was issued by 11 British churches.

Unlike the Douay version, which was based on the Latin Vulgate, the New American Bible was translated directly from the ancient Hebrew, Greek and Aramaic scriptures, according to the Rev. Stephen Hartdegen, coordinator of the editorial board.

The new Roman Catholic version also made use of the Dead Sea Scrolls and other recently discovered manuscripts.

Because of advance copies of the New American Bible have been distributed, religious scholars could make no judgment on the literary quality of the translation. However, some examples from the text were released, showing that archaic expressions such as "thou" have been eliminated in favor of contemporary language.

The New American Bible was sponsored by the Bishops' Committee of the Conferency of Christian Doctrine. The Old Testament section is an updated version of a four-volume work previously issued by the confederacy.

After Ecumenical

Work on the new translation began after Pope Pius XII issued an encyclical in 1943 urging that more attention be paid to sacred writings.

The first complete Roman Catholic Bible in English was the Douay-Rheims version, finished in 1582. It was revised in 1750.

The first edition of the New American Bible will be published on Sept. 30 by the St. Anthony Guild Press. Eleven other publishers have also been authorized to issue editions.

Bulk of J. P. Kennedy Estate To Foundation for First Son

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 25 (AP)—The late Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain, and father of a president and two U.S. senators, left a last will and testament bequeathing the bulk of his vast estate to a foundation named for his first son, Joseph Jr., who was killed in World War II.

The size of Mr. Kennedy's estate is still undetermined, according to records inspected today in Palm Beach County Court.

Mr. Kennedy, who made his winter home here his legal residence, died Nov. 18, 1969, in Hyannis Port, Mass.

In a will dated Dec. 30, 1955, and amended June 9, 1968, Mr. Kennedy specified that his widow, Rose, would receive a building in Albany, N.Y., known as the Standard Building and the sum of $500,000.

In the amended will, he added "if prior to my death, I shall have disposed of such Standard Building, I hereby increase the cash bequest . . . from $500,000 to $1 million."

"Having provided during my lifetime for my children and grandchildren, and having made other arrangements for my household help and employees, I intentionally omit to make any further provision for any of them," Mr. Kennedy's will stated.

"And I give, devise and bequeath all of the real, residue and remainder of my property, real, personal and of any nature whatsoever, unto the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation."

The foundation, with headquarters in Washington, has provided large sums for research on, and treatment of, mental retardation.

Typhoid Reported in U.K.

Man Sues Sex Researchers For Using Wife in 'Treatment'

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 25 (Reuters)—A $750,000 suit has been filed here against sex researchers William Masters and Virginia Johnson.

George Edwin Calvert accused the team of procuring his wife as a sexual partner for two men and using this relationship as a form of "treatment" for the men.

The charges arose from research carried out for the St. Louis team's book, "Human Sexual Inadequacy," a best seller since it appeared in April.

Mr. Calvert, in his suit filed in the federal court, said that he and his wife, Barbara, had been under treatment by Dr. Masters and Mrs. Johnson.

The suit named John Doe I, of New York, and John Doe II, of Virginia, as co-defendants. A lawyer said their real names would be revealed later so summonses could be served.

The suit alleged Dr. Masters and Mrs. Johnson were paid $5,000 for their treatment of John Doe I and an unspecified amount for treating John Doe II.

Dr. Masters called the charges ridiculous and said: "We would be delighted to disprove such a situation when the opportunity arises."

He said the suit was the first arising from the team's 15 years of research.

The suit alleged Mrs. Calvert was paid $500 to take part in the first "treatment" in 1967 and received $250 for the second "treatment" in 1968. But Mr. Calvert did not learn of either case until April this year, the suit said.

Mr. Calvert claimed he lost the conjugal society of his wife and suffered great humiliation and disgrace in his social and domestic relationships.

Christmas Toy Outlook in U.S.—Love-Beads and Wigs, Not Guns

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 25 (AP)—Love-bead kits, play wigs and space toys will be big-selling Christmas toys, wholesalers say, but war toys are losing their popularity.

Members of the National Toy Wholesalers Association meeting here had to choose the winners from the 300 new toys that manufacturers are promoting for Christmas selling.

Besides the popularity of love beads—which will come in kit form to be assembled—the peace movement has influenced the toy industry in another way, the wholesalers reported.

"The whole military line of toys has slacked off," said Stanley Shapiro, owner of a Richmond, Va., wholesale firm. "There is decidedly less emphasis on this type of toy than six years ago."

A line of little-girl play wigs was widely talked of by the wholesalers. A child seeing mother put on a wig to go out wants one for her "dress up" games, one wholesaler said. Several dealers indicated they thought the play wigs would be the hot item.

"For boys, space toys have never been as popular," said Mr. Shapiro, who said their success was based on the nation's space program.

Charges They Played Roles in Exposé

Sen. Tydings Again Accuses 2 Nixon Aides

By John Hanrahan

BAITIMORE, Aug. 25 (WP).—Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D. Md., charged yesterday that "persons in the White House itself" worked with Life magazine to fabricate charges that he used his influence as a senator to advance his private financial interests.

In his second press conference in four days to deny allegations made by Life in its current issue, Sen. Tydings said that he has asked his attorneys to "look into the grounds for a libel suit" against the magazine. He charged that Life "made no effort to really develop the facts."

Sen. Tydings, seeking election to a second term, faces a vigorous primary fight from George P. Mahoney, and, if he survives that, a strong challenge from the Republican nominee.

Elaborating on his denials of last Thursday, Sen. Tydings stated yesterday that "at no time and in no case did I ever lend the prestige of my office as a United States senator to any business activity."

Attention D'verted

Life, he charged, "maliciously served up this shadow of a story at the peak of my hard-fought campaign for re-election, diverting my energies and the public's attention from the issues of real substance, requiring me instead to bend my every effort to see to it . . .

Sen. Joseph Tydings

that the truth overtakes the smear."

Charging again that Life had worked with the Nixon administration in developing the story, Sen. Tydings suggested strongly that Peter M. Flanigan and Daniel W. Hefgren were involved in the effort. Mr. Flanigan is an assistant to President Nixon. Mr. Hefgren, a former aide to Mr. Flanigan, is a special representative at the State Department for renegotiation of the Panama Canal Treaty.

The Life article, by Pulitzer Prize-winner William Lambert, alleges, among other things, that Sen. Tydings assisted the Charter Co., a Jacksonville, Fla., firm, by appearing personally before an official of the State Department's Agency for International Development in an effort to secure $7 million in loans for a Charter operation in Nicaragua. The loan was subsequently approved.

Although Sen. Tydings said that the meeting occurred in December, 1964, when he owned no Charter stock, he acknowledged again yesterday that at the time he did own stock in the Title Insurance Co. of the South. This company, along with Charter, was controlled by his long-time friend, Raymond E. Mason, Sen. Tydings acknowledged. Since then, the two companies have merged and Sen. Tydings said that he now owned 19,208 shares of Charter stock, valued at $8.25 a share.

Sen. Tydings said that Mr. Lambert had told him earlier this summer that when he encountered roadblocks on a story "he didn't hesitate to go to the top" for help. Sen. Tydings indicated that this meant the White House.

Although the Republican administration planned as long ago as last December to get information on him to cause his defeat this year, Sen. Tydings said, an anti-administration speech he gave in March had caused special unhappiness at the White House.

That speech questioned favored treatment given by the Nixon administration to a shipping company that Mr. Flanigan headed before becoming a Nixon aide. In that case, the Samsen, a Liberian tanker owned by Mr. Flanigan's oil company, was granted a Treasury Department waiver to carry oil from one domestic port to another.

Waiver Resisted

Foreign-registered ships are barred from engaging in U.S. coastal trade. Sen. Tydings raised strong objections to the waiver.

Mr. Hefgren, Sen. Tydings said yesterday, had been involved in a joint venture with Mr. Mason, Paul Erdman, the AID official. Sen. Tydings acknowledges visiting in 1964, became a director for that joint venture. Sen. Tydings said yesterday, Life also had noted Mr. Erdman's move from AID to director of the Charter Co. subsidiary.

Neither Mr. Flanigan nor Mr. Hefgren could be reached for comment yesterday. White House spokesmen have denied previously that any staff members assisted the magazine.

Yesterday's press conference was an expanded version of last Thursday's press conference at which Sen. Tydings first denied the Life allegations and exonerated the magazine in advance of publication. Yesterday, he read for 65 minutes a 30-page prepared statement containing a point-by-point rebuttal of the Life allegations. He also answered reporters' questions for 20 minutes.

Corsica Reports Brush Fires Are Under Control

BASTIA, Corsica, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Pierce forest fires which have ravaged Corsica since the weekend have been brought under control, authorities said here today.

But three Canadian water-bombing planes are still patrolling the island to guard against fresh outbreaks, they added.

At the height of the blazes, gale-force winds swept across the island at more than 100 miles an hour, whipping up the flames of some of the worst forest fires Corsica has known.

Dr. Hermann Knaus, 78, Dies; Originator of Rhythm Method

GRAZ, Austria, Aug. 25 (AP).—Dr. Hermann Knaus, 78, originator of the rhythm method of birth control, died of a heart attack Sunday in a Graz sanatorium, his family announced.

The rhythm method, based on studies of the female fertility cycle, derived from studies Dr. Knaus undertook while at Cambridge University in the early 1930s. It became the world's most popular manner of natural birth control.

The system was strongly endorsed by the Roman Catholic Church, and Dr. Knaus was received by Pope Pius XII in a special audience in November, 1952.

A native Austrian, Dr. Knaus took his medical degree in 1920 from the University of Graz, followed by surgical and physiological studies at London and Cambridge.

His teaching career at the University of Graz began in 1923, when he became full professor in 1930.

After gynecological studies at Cambridge in the early 1930s, he taught and practiced at the birth clinic of the German University in Prague in 1934-1935.

In 1950 he became director of the gynecological birth clinic at the City Hospital, Vienna-Lainz, a position he held until his retirement.

Dr. Knaus's scientific writings on rhythm birth control, later amplified by research of the Japanese gynecologist Ogino, were translated into many languages.

Dr. Viktor V. Novozhilov, New York, Aug. 25 (NYT).—Viktor V. Novozhilov, 77, Soviet mathematical economist, died last Wednesday in Leningrad, the Soviet press announced.

Dr. Novozhilov was an early advocate of the use of an electronic computer for planning of the complex Soviet economy. When first published in the late 1950s, his ideas were still ideologically unpopular.

They gradually won acceptance over the resistance of orthodox Marxist economists, and in 1965 Dr. Novozhilov shared in a Lenin prize.

India to Bar BBC If It Shows More Of Malle Films

NEW DELHI, Aug. 25 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today that the British Broadcasting Corp. will have to close down its operations in India this Saturday and withdraw its local correspondent if it airs another film on India's poverty, scheduled for tomorrow night.

The sources said India's ultimatum will be presented to the BBC by the Indian High Commission in London today or tomorrow.

The commission, the sources added, has been instructed to seek an "unqualified apology" from the BBC for serious earlier installments of the series on India, which was produced by French director Louis Malle.

Reports here said the next installment in the Malle series deals with a vegetarian tribe in which girls are sexually initiated at the age of 13.

A BBC spokesman said after talks with the Indian High Commission today that the corporation, while refusing to apologize for the series, has offered to voice regret that it caused concern in India. The spokesman said the High Commission had rejected this offer.

LONDON Two Shows Top Summer Art Calendar

By Max Wykes-Joyce

LONDON, Aug. 25.—During what is undoubtedly the dot-drum, from an artistic point of view, there are two summer shows of considerable interest currently on view in London.

At Compendium 3, 137, Fulham Road, S.W. 3, is an exhibition entitled "Faces on the Clee." The Clee is the hill district in southern Shropshire, the border county between England and Wales, and the four artists showing here—Johnston, Langrish, Mason and Tarrant (who seem to have revived the Slade School of Art custom of surnames only)—are all Shropshire born and trained.

It is exciting to find four painters drawing upon their own countryside for inspiration, without in any sense being landscape painters as such. They turn to their village neighbors, the recluses with their cats, the local postman, the landed gentry outside their country houses, for the personages in their lively figures. They update local legends, skilfully the "Barley" Paradise in a Shropshire valley, and paint self-portraits centered in fantastic agglomerations of local imagery, some real, some surreal.

"Faces on the Clee" demonstrates very clearly that English art has not wholly lost touch with the romantic tradition, which was one of its great strengths, and that not all good English painting has been befuddled by internationalism and (frequently) sterile "isms."

At the Leicester Galleries is an excellent show of works by artists of the past, supplemented by paintings and sculpture done by living artists, presented by the gallery.

Among the painters of the past there are notable works by Mark Gertler (1891-1939), including a pastel "Still Life Homage to Roger Fry." Roger Fry was the Bloomsbury theoretician who did much to promote Gertler and his contemporaries, all of whom trained together at the Slade in the period 1910-15. Other outstanding works include those of Frances Hodgkins (1898-1947) whose sensitive talent was underdeveloped in her lifetime. Her work is now receiving some sort of revival.

Among other painters of the past are Wyndham Lewis (1894-1957), represented here by a pencil and wash "Portrait of a Woman" (1932); George Mayer-Marion (1893-1960), by a group of English landscapes in watercolor; and C.R.W. Nevinson, by an oil "Rain Mud After the Battle." This was one of the most famous of his 1914-1918 Western front pictures, of which he made a large number. He subsequently collected 25 of them into a book titled "Modern War." In this, he shows quite clearly his connection with Marinetti and the Italian futurists, and also his relationship to cubism and vorticism.

Among the works by living artists, eye-catchers include the gouache "Evening Shore" by Ray Howard-Jones; Eberhard White's watercolor "Old Barn" (painted in 1915—he is still with us, vigorous as ever and still painting extraordinarily good pictures); More are John Armstrong's "Circus Performers" and "Snake Charmer," both dating from the late 1920s; John Christopherson's recent small decorative oils; and Michael Wishart's extraordinary "St. Mand."

Among several excellent Epstein bronzes, the "First Portrait of Jackie," executed in 1935, is outstanding.

SALZBURG: A Festival for the Record

By David Stevens

SALZBURG, Austria.—One of the signs of the times here during the festival period—aside from the flood of tourists attracted by this baroque city's extra-musical beauty—is the overwhelming presence of the major recording companies, whose promotional displays have a virtual monopoly on wall and window space in the city's center.

They dominate the store windows to such an extent that the impression of being one big record shop. One Salzburg merchant, a purveyor of garden hoses and like equipment, had to counteract the effect of his window displays by putting up a sign to announce that "We don't sell records."

But the recording industry makes itself felt in more direct, less obvious ways. One Viennese critic preceded a laudatory review of the Heide recital that joined the talents of Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau and Sviatoslav Richter with the somewhat testy acknowledgment that their presence together on the festival program may have been due principally to the fact that they had just recorded the same program together.

But the question of whether the public performance or the recording comes first is probably of little consequence to the music lover who can enjoy one or the other, or both. And the two recording industry giants—Deutsche Grammophon and Electrical and Musical Industries—marked the festival's 50-year jubilee with two-disc issues closely bound to recent and past Salzburg Festival history. The German firm has issued a recording of Cavalieri's "Rappresentazione di Anna e di Corbo," the 370-year-old religious opera whose success was the sleeper of the 1968 festival. The records can only hint at the beauty of the production in

Edinburgh Opens With Prokofiev —Controversial Scene No Shocker

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Aug. 25 (AP)—A packed house of 1,500 music lovers gave Anja Silja and Rudolf Constantini a standing ovation last night at the end of Prokofiev's opera "The Fiery Angel."

The controversial opera, under fire because of a chorus of three nude nuns, opened Edinburgh's three-week music festival. The city council, sponsor of the festival, breathed deeply in relief. Three young ladies playing the part of bare-breasted nuns did not even create a ripple in the jammed auditorium of the King's Theater. Music was the thing.

Soprano Silja and baritone Constantini of Frankfurt's municipal opera were the targets of shouted "braves" and the normally reticent Scotsmen beat their hands red.

"Everything went well," said Charles Nicholas, the festival spokesman. "No one was offended. It vindicated our decision to bring this fine opera to Edinburgh."

More than 100,000 tourists are estimated to have crowded into Edinburgh to see festival events that encompass everything from symphony concerts to rock musicals, during 130 performances crammed into three weeks. There are also 60 theatrical groups giving unofficial performances during the festival.

the baroque Kollegienkirche, but the issue on DGG's scholarly Archiv series is nonetheless welcome. EMI's festive issue is not new, but a collection of reissues, mostly vocal, of performances by artists in parts they have sung at the festival. The connection is often tenuous and most of the items are already familiar on records, but the 30-odd selections amount to a comprehensive memorial to many of the great singers who have figured in the festival programs almost from the beginning.

One of the most hotly anticipated events of this year's festival—at least for Germans and Austrians—was Oskar Werner's return to the German-language stage after many years' absence in the title role of his own production of "Hamlet." The production, which also involved many of Vienna's leading actors, profoundly disappointed most of the critics without apparently diminishing the demand for tickets. The production, whose cuts included the role of Fortinbras, was referred to on the front page of Viennese papers as a "debacle," and the criticisms were marked by such sarcastic remarks as "Catastrophe in Denmark," or "Where was Fortinbras," when he could have cleaned up the stage of what one had looked at for three hours, or "Hamlet, the living corpse." Nevertheless, the consensus seemed to be not against Werner the actor but against the director, and a local movie house that simultaneously scheduled a festival of Oskar Werner films did a lively business.

The death of George Solti struck particularly hard at the Salzburg Festival, not only because he had been scheduled to conduct Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the Vienna Philharmonic here last week, but because his association with the festival had been virtually uninterrupted since 1949, because his Cleveland Orchestra was one of only two American orchestras ever to appear here (1967), because his appearance as a child piano prodigy of ten in Vienna was recalled with his appearance in 1956 as conductor-soloist in a Mozart piano concerto, because he had conducted many new operas at the festival ("Liebermann's" "Penelope" and "School for Wives" and Egk's "Trische Legende"). But above all because he represented the Central European tradition (Vienna, Strasbourg, Berlin, Prague et al) absorbed into American musical life and brought back to enrich that of the Old World.

Among the exhibits in Salzburg during the summer are two directly related to the festival and its history. In the Residenz exhibit "50 Years of the Salzburg Festival" (until Sept. 30), is a compact and objective selection of material not only from the festival archives and the Austrian National Library, but from the archives of Max Reinhardt, Clemens Krauss, the architect Clemens Holzmeister and many others of long association with the festival. The founding, the great prewar and postwar years are well documented, and there is no glossing over the dismal impact of world affairs from 1933 to 1946. At the Max Reinhardt archives in Schloss Arenberg, on the right bank of the Salzach about ten minutes' walk from the city center, "Max Reinhardt and the World of Commedia dell'Arte" (until Sept. 3) relies largely but not exclusively on photographs to document its subject, ranging from the many Reinhardt productions of Goldoni's "Arlecchino, Servant of Two Masters" to the Goss-Busoni "Turandot," the 1912 premiere of the original version of the Strauss-Hofmannsthal-Moliere "Ariadne auf Naxos," and Hofmannsthal's "Salzburg World Theater"—in 1922 the festival's first production in the Kollegienkirche.

THEATER: Four by Rattigan

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Terence Rattigan's new play, "A Request to the Nation," is in rehearsal in London under the direction of Peter Glenville, with a mid-September premiere scheduled.

This is Mr. Rattigan's first work for the theater in seven years and it revolves about the romance of Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson. The "request" of the title is that made by Nelson to king and country in his mistress's behalf—that after his death "they give her an ample provision to maintain her rank in life." Heading the cast are Ian Holm as the naval hero and Zoe Caldwell, who abandoned a Broadway hit in which she was playing the French novelist Colette for the role of Lady Hamilton.

Mr. Rattigan, who has established residence in Bermuda, is spending a few weeks in Paris prior to the London opening. He hopes, during his stay, to complete a duo of shorter plays to compose a double bill on the order of his earlier "Browning Version" and "Separate Tables," an amusing "Life and Soul" as their overall title, remarked the Harrow-Oxford-educated author of "French Without Tears," "Roses" and "The Deep Blue Sea." "But as they are by me—and not by Turgenev—it may be 'Life and Soul of the Party!'"

Meanwhile, a revival of another Rattigan play, "The Winslow Boy," is opening in Brighton this week. It is based on the celebrated Archer-Shee case, and treats of a British father's long legal battle to clear his 14-year-old son of the charge of having stolen a small sum of money while at the Colonial Naval Academy. Kenneth More is playing the crafty prosecution lawyer, who confronts the accused boy. The play is London-bound and the West End will thus be seeing four Rattigan works during the coming season.

During the long absence from the theater, Mr. Rattigan has scarcely been idle. He has been occupied "chiefly" with screen writing—"The Viper," "The Yellow Rolls-Royce," the remake of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and an as-yet-unfirmed script for a ballet musical. Two years ago, he wrote the television spectacle for BBC about Lord Nelson that inspired the stage version.

"The action takes place between Nelson's return to England on Aug. 30, 1805, and the Naval Action off Cape Trafalgar" on Oct. 21, with a final scene occurring some three weeks later, soon after the news of Nelson's death reached London," he explained.

"I have tried to picture Nelson's complex mood, his genius as a leader and his obsessive passion for Emma Hamilton, despite his awareness that to others she seemed a drunken, middle-aged woman who was making them both ridiculous. The portrait of Emma is unromantic but sympathetic. It differs, of course, from the usual one, that of the English rose, beauty of the Romney canvases and the 'lady' of the Corinne Griffith movie. There is also a portrait of 'poor Tom-Tit,' the crippled Frances Nelson, seen by the world as the loyal wife shamefully deserted, but whose enduring love and forgiveness proved for Nelson the ultimate brutality.

"Now, about the brace of new plays," continued Mr. Rattigan. "I have only finished the first so I can only describe that one. It will be called 'My Proud Beauty' and will be the 'Life of the Party,' the second. 'Soul'—is to be a serious drama about the deceptive relations that part a couple.

"My Proud Beauty" is a spoof of Sardou's "Tosca." By introducing humor—or even a bit of common sense—a playwright can turn melodrama into farce. In my version, Tosca finds that the villain, Scarpia, who holds her captive, demanding her surrender for her lover's life, is a more interesting man than her lover."

Classic Inspiration

Mr. Rattigan, widely regarded as a master of theatrical construction, has probably profited more from his study of Greek classic drama and Shakespeare than from the well-made play models of Sardou and Poirer. He believes all modern dramatists are the children of either Ibsen or Chekhov.

"I write under the Ibsen influence," he said. "Tennessee Williams, on the other hand, is Chekhovian in manner. Of the practicing playwrights in English, I admire Williams and John Osborne—especially his 'Inadmissible Evidence'—more than the others. Both have shown flashes of greatness, though as yet I don't suppose either has written a great play. Joe Orton was an author of many promises. When I saw his first play, 'Entertaining Mr. Sloan,' I saw at once that it was written on the lines of classic comedy. Few recognize this, but I was not surprised when I met Orton to find that Aristophanes was his model."

Movies in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—This is how reviewers for The New York Times saw the new films:

"Eldridge Cleaver," which opened without warning in New York Monday, is a "generally intelligent, wholly sympathetic treatment of the thoughts and personality of Eldridge Cleaver in exile in Algiers," reports Roger Greenspun. "Insofar as Cleaver is the subject, the film is thoughtful, ironic, valuable. Insofar as Johnson, Reagan, Nixon, Agnew and the 'crimes of American imperialism' are the subjects, the film is very tired and very ordinary propaganda." Directed by William Klein ("Mr. Freedom," "Float Like a Butterfly, Sting Like a Bee," an episode of "Sex From Vietnam"), the film consists of his best of interviews with and scenes from Cleaver's Algerian exile. He emerges as a man of considerable wit, grace, personal sadness and hard-headed realism. Although Cleaver advocates an orthodox revolutionary toughness ("So far as I'm concerned, the neutrals are part of the problem"), he rejects black racism in favor of an internationalism of the oppressed that, if short on analysis, is also short on appeals to anti-American paranoia.

"The New Life Style," directed by Jerry Macco and Peter Savage, starring Horst Tappert and Renata Van Holt, "wriggled in from Europe," Howard Thompson says, "and 'mainly presents a group of 'groovy' young and youthful people frolicking on the German island of Sylt in the North Sea and behaving like nincompoops. They squeal, snick, dance, swim, guzzle and occasionally pair off for some nude wallowing." He added that it "might fill the bill if you're looking for tired cheese."

"Out of It," directed by Paul Williams, with Henry Gordon, Jon Voight and Lada Edmund Jr., was judged "very long on appeal, but short on achievement," by Roger Greenspun. "A sort of teen-age rites of passage in Bellmore, L.I., 'Out of It' concerns one summer's misadventures among a group of kids who go to the beach, suffer football practice, neck and pet, drive into the city at night, and hang around with a young man named Paul (Barry Gordon), mostly because he has the keys to his mother's car." The film was made in 1967, according to the distributor, but the critic says it "looks and feels just a bit older—say 1968—even allowing for South Shore cultural lag."

"Darker Than Amber," directed by Robert Clouse, with Rod Taylor as "a chesty hero tilting at a nest of criminals," comes off "better than average" for movies of its type, according to Howard Thompson. The reviewer said Taylor "seemed exactly the kind of guy who would rescue a pretty girl (Susy Kendall) from the bay, where she was thrown by two sadistic brutes, have a bit of a fling with her, fall for her and then go after the killers," but that Miss Kendall "in the dual role of mystery girl and one of those underwater ballerinas, is simply too refined looking and sounding to fit her sordid past." From the windup, Thompson says, it's easy to see the title means "blood."

The unfortunate aspect of the senator's proposals is that they may undermine, rather than facilitate, the peace talks under way at the UN. The goal of these talks is to arrive at an agreement to which both the Arabs and the Israelis will voluntarily sub-

The task that faces Ambassador Jarring in carrying the forthcoming negotiations to success is incredibly difficult at best. Unquestionably, he will need much help from Washington and Moscow in keeping the talks from collapsing. The near-disaster that attended Egyptian movement of Soviet missiles into the zone just west of the Suez Canal on the night of the standstill ceasefire was evidence of how tenuous the whole undertaking is. At this stage the most useful service anyone in Washington, Moscow or other capitals can provide is to back up the Jarring mission.

Finally, Mr. Nixon has made what Mr. Diaz Ordaz calls a "constructive" proposal for improving the agreement involving distribution of the waters of the lower Colorado River. If a new agreement satisfactory to both sides can be reached by the time the old one expires in November, Mr. Nixon will have even more cause to be pleased with his personal diplomacy south of the Rio Grande.

The detail has not yet been suggested, and much of it would be acutely difficult to work out. Nor, most important, has the attitude of President Nixon and Congress to so major a proposition been clarified, since it appears that the senator is not reflecting any official thinking. What is unmistakable is that the Arab and Israeli diplomats, as they begin their negotiations in New York, and thus the Arab and Israeli peoples, have been offered a peace plan which is far more worthy of their attention than time-consuming and ultimately unimportant squabbles about the movement of missiles a couple of kilometers to or from the canal.

PARIS—The patriotic demonstrations which are taking place in Germany at the present moment have caused some stir in the Chancelleries of Europe. Even Governments which are friendly with or allies of Germany have not concealed their surprise, and there are indications that in view of the state of mind a damper will be put on the demonstrations arranged to take place on September 2, the anniversary of the capitulation of Sedan.

August 26, 1920

PARIS—The three-hundredth anniversary of the sailing of the Mayflower for America will be celebrated at Plymouth, England, on Friday, September 3. The event, of such special interest to all Americans, but most for those of the old Colonial stock, has enlisted the participation of many American and British historical and cultural organizations. It is very fitting that both America and England should jointly commemorate the anniversary.

for it would like to know who it could negotiate with about an American timetable of withdrawal, if not about a final peace settlement.

Suppose Hanoi merely waits until most of the American expeditionary force has been withdrawn and then mounts an offensive the South Vietnamese cannot contain? Would this place the American command in jeopardy or force the U.S. to send men back into the battle?

"We don't talk about that," the cabinet official said. "We are sure the South Vietnamese will be able to take over with the help of our air power."

In short, the administration is committed to get out of Vietnam, but the more it does the more the course of the war will be decided by the actions of Saigon and this is troubling thought even for the officials who say "everything is working according to plan."

more could now about the administration's intentions in Cambodia; whether the Nixon doctrine is really just a name for day-to-day improvisation and not a structured doctrine at all; and whether the President's Southeast Asia policy had changed radically in seven months. Mr. Tanaka in seven minutes raised all the questions in the current debate, a debate likely to keep escalating on through the November elections. Spokesmen at the White House,

One other thing troubling the administration is that officials here really don't know who is calling the tune in Hanoi. This has been the case ever since the death of Ho Chi Minh. The official line here now is that the North Vietnamese are "too weak to make war on a large scale and apparently so divided in their collective leadership that no one man is strong enough to negotiate a compromise peace."

Washington is concerned about

But the bitterness and vehemence of the reaction from Africa has clearly surprised Prime Minister Heath's government. A series of meetings in East Africa this month involving Tanzania, Uganda, Zambia and Kenya indicates that relations between the two continents are far from friendly. The British are regarded as the aggressors in trade and an effective dismantling of the last vestige of the British Empire, the Commonwealth. Some of the British surprise may stem from counting too much on the example of France, which has sold nearly half of its foreign assets of military goods to South Africa since the 1964 British ban went into effect. There has been little criticism of France in Africa. This disparity has led to the charge of hypocrisy being leveled at the countries now berating Britain. But such a charge neglects the special relationship that the two western powers and former great imperial powers in Africa and their ex-colonies have maintained over the years.

For one thing, the former French colonies lack the leverage that the English-speaking countries have in dealing with Britain. For another, much of French-speaking Africa is quietly building up its own trade with South Africa. A ranking French diplomat stationed in Africa explains the silence of former French colonies on the arms sales this way: "They know that part of the money that goes to Paris will eventually get down to them. And they need the money."

Day. The French capital and total expenditure, French aid to Africa, far outweighs that given by Britain. Because of hidden agricultural subsidies and budgetary grants, it is difficult to come up with an accurate total of the amount of French aid to the French-speaking. But it is certain that without that aid, several African governments, like Senegal, Chad, Dahomey, Niger and Upper Volta literally could not continue to function. Moreover, the French continue to hold the key posts in the infrastructures of most of these countries. They run the army, the Ivory Coast's economy, the Gabon's system. Whether they wield the power in the Machiavellian way that outsiders often attribute to them is a highly debatable point. But the fact is that they are in a position to do so, and African leaders cannot afford to forget that.

If the officers couldn't handle the Iveston "mutiny" themselves without calling in the local constabulary, seems as though they're the ones who should be court-martialed for incompetence.

I read with intense interest your recent announcement that U.S. Furriers have agreed not to process the pelts of endangered species. As a member of an endangered species, it is at least some consolation to know that someone is not going to come along and process my pelt.

Japan Eases Bars on Investments

TOKYO, Aug. 25 (AP)—Japan agreed to open 22 more business categories to direct foreign investment, beginning Oct. 1.

In addition, the next and final round of scheduled liberalizations has been moved up to October, 1971, instead of March, 1972, as previously scheduled, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said.

Yoshi Mitsuoka, the minister, reported that the automobile industry would be opened to foreign investment in April, 1971, instead of October of that year, originally planned.

Government officials explained that the dates have been advanced to enable Japan to take a more active attitude toward foreign investments.

Today's action, taken at a cabinet meeting, increases to 224 the number of business categories for which Japan has eased restrictions on foreign participation.

Investments Restricted
TOKYO, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—A list of business categories to be submitted last week by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry Council. Although some percent of the country's industries are now "freed," most investments are restricted to 50-80 joint ventures.

Most of the sectors involved are considered desirable by foreign investors—as they lean toward such categories as bicycle repairs, painting, and the manufacture of various articles. More attractive sectors, such as the computer, petrochemical and car industries, remain closed.

Although the banking and securities industries are freed, existing laws will make it very difficult for foreigners to take full advantage of the liberalization. Department

British Pound Drops Again; Stocks Ease

LONDON, Aug. 25 (UPI)—The British pound sterling fell back in foreign exchange markets today, to its lowest level for 11 months.

Sterling closed the day at $2.3875, also turned weak against several European currencies as investors moved out of pounds to dollars. The pound's value has fallen by over a quarter of a cent since Friday.

Dealers felt the Bank of England was letting the exchange rate slide rather than spend reserves to buy pounds, and is steady the rate.

The Treasury made no comment on the currency's setback and government quarters appeared not to be particularly concerned about the pound's weakness which was compounded by the weekend's gloomy economic forecast from the National Institute for Economic and Social Research and by labor strikes hitting production in the industry, normally an important export earner.

This period of the year can also be unfavorable for the pound for international commercial reasons, if inflation added to stagnation in British industry also causes uneasiness.

The institute urged the government to boost the economy by permitting greater spending or face the risk of rising unemployment and inflation. It also mentioned the dangers of another devaluation.

While the pound faltered, the London stock market ignored its worries for part of the day, then shares lost their sparkle and the Financial Times index closed at 414.8, down 0.8 for the day.

The price of gold tacked on 14 cents to close at $35.80 an ounce.

S. Africa Details Gold Sales, Says More Anticipated

PRETORIA, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—South Africa has sold 10.8 million ounces of gold to the International Monetary Fund and other monetary authorities since the new marketing agreement at the beginning of this year. Reserve bank governor Theunis de Jongh said today.

It is probable further sales will be made to them during the coming weeks to finance the relatively large deficit in the country's current account of payments. Mr. de Jongh told stockholders at the bank's annual meeting. The bank amounted to a record 465 million rand ($880 million) in fiscal 1970.

He also reported total sales of 1 million fine ounces of gold on the private market, earning a premium of $10.8 million for the mining industry since March 1968 when the London gold pool dissolved.

German Auto Output
Düsseldorf, Aug. 25 (AP).—Germany's automobile production between January and July, 1970, was up 7.2 percent from the 1969 period, the German Automobile Industry Association (VDA) said today. Production in the seven months was 2,235,587 units compared with 2,068,737 in 1969.

Foreigners Now Can Purchase Up to 25% of Company's Stock

TOKYO, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Overseas investors will get an additional share in Japan's economic boom under new liberalization measures approved by the cabinet today.

Starting Sept. 1, the limit on foreign holdings in the equity of a Japanese firm will be raised to 25 percent from the present 20 percent.

According to an estimate made by Daiwa Securities, this will probably result in an inflow of foreign portfolio investments totaling up to $53 million.

At present two blue chips—Fujitsu Photofilm and Taiheiyo Marine and Fire Insurance—have reached the 20 percent limit. Daiwa said. A 5 percent increase in these two alone would result in an inflow of about $18 million.

Foreign portfolio investments are also believed to be close to 20 percent in several companies following the recent recovery in the Japanese stock market, the company said.

Yamaichi Securities estimates that total foreign portfolio holdings of Japanese stocks was believed to have reached $3 billion before declining moderately after the end-April fall in the Japanese stock market.

Net foreign portfolio investments totaled $1 billion in 1968 and 1969, Yamaichi said.

Judge Vetoes Move to Oust His Four Seasons Trustee

By John P. MacKenzie
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 25 (UPI)—Declaring "I have never run from a fight," Federal Judge Luther Bohannon refused yesterday to oust his appointee as a bankruptcy trustee in the controversial reorganization of Four Seasons Nursing Centers Inc.

Rejecting complaints from some stockholders and a European creditor, Judge Bohannon said he could not find a better trustee than management analyst Norman Hirschfeld. Mr. Hirschfeld received a $5,000 fee from Four Seasons after commencing the bankruptcy action that is now under way.

Judge Bohannon, chief judge of the Western District of Oklahoma, did accept "with deep regret" withdrawal from the case of Edward Barth, a law partner of Judge Bohannon's son, whom the judge had appointed co-counsel to trustee Hirschfeld.

Motion Rejected
With little discussion, the judge rejected a motion by attorneys for New York stockholders to transfer the case out of Oklahoma. Oklahoma-based Four Seasons, the stock market wonder of 1969 that went bankrupt this spring, is the subject of intense interest to shareholders claiming millions in fraud damages.

Ohio politicians in trouble over a $4 million loan to the nursing home conglomerate, and to European investors over a now-bankrupt subsidiary called Four Seasons Overseas.

James D. Fellers, attorney for a Luxembourg creditor, argued in a legal brief that Mr. Hirschfeld and his court-appointed lawyers "cannot be disinterested" in handling "conflicting interests" involving Four Seasons and the foreign subsidiary.

By reason of his prior relationship with Four Seasons.

Four Seasons is accused of using $800,000 of Overseas money to pay a debt to an Oklahoma City bank on June 25, one day before Four Seasons sought refuge from its creditors in reorganization proceedings under Chapter X of the bankruptcy act.

Outlook Not Bright
Judge Bohannon, noting that "the outlook is not bright that the trustee can come up with a plan" to keep Four Seasons running.

Petroleum Stocks Displace Electronics in NYSE Value

By Ernest A. Schonberger
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—Petroleum industry stocks have again become the New York Stock Exchange industrial group with the highest market value, displacing electronics securities.

The utility group has long had the highest market valuation for all stocks.

But in the industrial category, the electronics sector moved in as top in total valuation about a year ago, ousting petroleum. Now the rankings again have reversed.

The electronics surge in 1964 was due mainly to the strength of International Business Machines, which proceeded to its all-time high around the turn of the year. At the same time, oil stocks took one of their sharpest slides.

IBM Records
IBM alone, at its peak, had a market value of about $40 billion—far more than any stock in the world and almost as much as General Motors and American Telephone and Telegraph combined—and more than ten times as much as U.S. Steel.

At its peak IBM accounted for roughly half the value of all 94 common stocks categorized by the NYSE as "electronics, electrical." That category includes such diversified giant corporations as General Electric, Westinghouse and RCA as well as scores of emerging, so-called growth companies in miniature electronics.

But since IBM peaked at $86 billion, the category has lost much of its luster. The NYSE category for "electronics, electrical" now contains 53 common stocks, whose market value as of Aug. 1 was $64.7 billion, compared with $71.1 billion for electronics-electrical. The biggest single chunk of oil-industry market value comes from Jersey Standard, which is now price-tagged at about $14 billion.

Many major petroleum companies have significant natural gas programs. Standard Oil of New Jersey, for instance, is the leading natural gas producer listed on the NYSE with daily average U.S. sales of more than 4 billion cubic feet.

Nixon's Aide Says Quotas Not Desired

Calls Them a Tool To Get Voluntary Pact

By Edwin L. Dale Jr.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (NYT).—A leading Nixon administration spokesman on trade matters made a bitter attack yesterday on import quotas and said the administration does not really want quotas on textiles, which it had endorsed.

Hendrik S. Houthakker, a member of the Council of Economic Advisors, said, in effect, that it would be a good thing if there were fewer U.S. workers in the textile industry. The administration backed a provision in pending trade legislation imposing textile quotas "only to improve the prospect of success" in negotiations with Japan and others for voluntary export restraint, he said, adding:

"It would be a mistake to infer from this that the administration actually wants textile quotas, and is prepared to accept quotas on other commodities in order to get quotas on textiles. As the President has made abundantly clear, this administration is committed to free trade."

Enter Soybeans
He gave his views in a speech in San Francisco, the first of which was made available here. He disclosed that the United States had strongly indicated last year to the European Common Market that there would be restrictions on imports of European automobiles if the Common Market adopted a proposed indirect tax on soybeans—an action that has not yet been taken.

Mr. Houthakker ran through a list of arguments now being used in favor of more import restrictions, many of them based on the contention that world conditions have changed. He concluded: "None of the arguments currently advanced in favor of protectionism hold much water."

Mr. Houthakker did not discuss the detailed provisions of the trade bill recently approved by the House Ways and Means Committee, nor did he hint at a Presidential veto of the bill. The bill's many provisions include some that would lead to new import restrictions.

Voluntary Restraint
On the subject of textiles and shoes, Mr. Houthakker said that in cases where "imports have grown so rapidly as to cause serious disruption" there is a case "for moderating the growth of imports by obtaining voluntary restraints—where the American exporters are willing to accept them."

"Our textile and shoe industries may well be at a disadvantage because of the wages they have to pay in order to retain workers, but this merely indicates that American workers can be more productively employed in other industries. In countries such as South Korea, on the other hand, the textile industry provides the most productive employment that is available there. It is therefore to the advantage of both countries if more American workers get out of textiles and more Korean workers get into them."

Quotas Hit
Mr. Houthakker emphasized that employment "adjustments" were going on all the time in the U.S. economy and that this was "only to a minor extent as a result of changes in international trade."

He was particularly critical of quotas as a device for restricting imports. A tariff does not destroy competition, he said, but a quota does. Quotas also give "windfalls" to specific American exporters or foreign exporters, often "in completely arbitrary fashion."

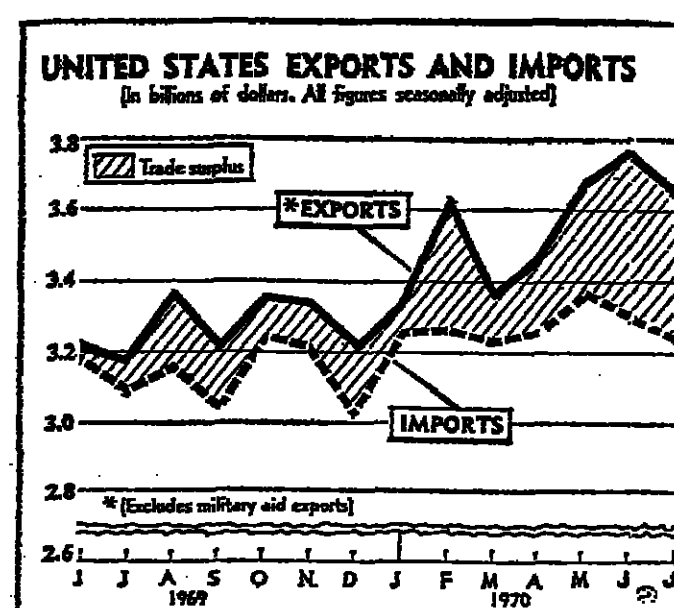

Denmark to Keep Spending Freeze

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Denmark's Finance Minister Poul Moller said after cabinet meeting today that a freeze on new public investment projects, imposed in March, will be prolonged until Jan. 1, 1971. It was to have ended on Oct. 15.

The freeze is one of a number of measures introduced this year in an attempt to bring balance of payments deficits under control. Last year produced a record deficit of 3.16 billion kroner ($532 million) and informed sources estimate that this year's will amount to over 4 billion.

U.S. Racks Up Solid Surplus In Trade for Second Month

By Edwin L. Dale Jr.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (NYT).—U.S. foreign trade showed a solid surplus of exports over imports in July for the second month in a row, the Commerce Department reported today.

For the June-July period combined, the trade surplus was running at an annual rate of more than $5 billion—far above the greatly reduced surplus of about $1 billion in 1968 and 1969.

Exports in July extended imports by $441 million, little changed from the $468 million surplus in June. By contrast, the average monthly surplus in the first quarter of this year was $198 million.

There was no assurance that the dramatic improvement would continue. But officials said the July figures, at the least, tended to show that the June figure was not a statistical "fluke."

An improvement in the trade surplus is almost universally regarded as the key to a reduction in the continuing large deficit in international payments.

Meanwhile, it became known that a new official analysis of the nation's trade picture in recent years attributes almost the whole of the deterioration in the surplus since 1968 to the inflationary condition of excess total demand in the economy, not to any fundamental change in the competitiveness of U.S. industry.

The analysis was made under the direction of Robert Solomon, adviser to the Federal Reserve Board, for presentation to the President's Commission on International Trade and Investment, which has recently begun its deliberations.

The study, still not public, concludes that the United States would have had a trade surplus of at least $4 billion, and possibly more, in 1969 if excess demand and inflation had not been allowed to develop following 1968.

This conclusion contrasts sharply with that of the Commerce Department and some independent trade experts, who believe that there has been a fundamental change in the nation's trade competitiveness viewpoint, which has been influential in leading Congress toward restrictive legislation.

It is now universally agreed that excess demand no longer afflicts the economy, and the latest evidence indicates that inflation is probably abating. The June and July trade figures, combined with the lesser improvement earlier this year, appear to reflect this condition and support the conclusions of the Federal Reserve staff study.

When total demand, or spending, in the economy runs ahead of the capacity to produce, as was the case during much of the 1968-69 period, imports tend to rise rapidly to fill the gap. That is what happened. U.S. exports continued to grow at a normal rate, but imports grew much faster than exports, reducing the trade surplus almost to the vanishing point.

Today's report for July put exports, seasonally adjusted, at $3.6 billion, slightly below the record levels reached in May and June. Imports were $3.24 billion, the lowest since March.

In the most recent four months imports averaged only 2 percent higher than in the preceding four months. Export growth so far this year has been 14 percent.

Yields Decline On Treasury Bills
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (NYT).—Treasury bill rates declined sharply at yesterday's auction from last week's levels, the U.S. government reported.

The average discount rate on 92-day bills today was 6.18 percent, down from 6.27 percent last week, and the lowest level since June 3, 1969, when the rate was 6.19 percent. For 182-day bills, the average discount rate was 6.33 percent, down from 6.57 percent a week ago, and the lowest since April 13, 1970, when it was 6.24 percent.

Yesterday's two average discount rates were the equivalent of yields of 6.39 percent and 6.64 percent, respectively, on ordinary coupon-bearing securities.

Stocks Slump, Recoup In Profit-Taking Bout

By Vartan G. Vartan
NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (NYT).—The stock market absorbed some heavy profit-taking today, but rallied late in the session to close slightly higher on some key indicators. Blue chips leveled off while glamour stocks continued to soar on the New York Stock Exchange.

Wall Street analysts were encouraged by the market's resilience on the heels of a dynamic upswing. The Dow Jones industrial average, over the five previous trading days, had skyrocketed more than 50 points.

The Dow eased 0.51 point to 758.97 at the close today. In the hour before noon, when profit-taking was rampant, the Dow was down more than 8 points.

The NYSE index, moving ahead in the final hour, edged up 0.13 to 43.96.

Also finishing on the plus side was the Big Board's overall box score, showing 856 advances and 497 declines. There were 21 highs and 13 lows.

Volume High
Volume continued active at 17.52 million shares. This was off somewhat from yesterday's 18.91 million shares, which equaled the biggest turnover for the year set on May 28.

Among the glimmers, IBM added 1 1/4 to 264 after running up 13 1/2 yesterday. During the Friday and Monday sessions, the Dow indicator had boomed nearly 20 points.

Other glamour computer issues posted these advances: Memorex, up 5 5/8 to 66 5/8 on the active list; Honeywell, up 4 7/8 to 93 1/8; and Motorola, up 1 1/2 to 43 1/2.

Also finishing on the plus side was the Big Board's overall box score, showing 856 advances and 497 declines. There were 21 highs and 13 lows.

Disney Up
Disney, which lagged behind yesterday with a loss of 1 3/8, rose 5 1/4 to 107 5/8 today. Corning Glass works climbed 5 1/2 to 172 1/2. American Research and Development rose 3 3/8 to 55 1/8.

Climbing by two points or more were Xerox, Motorola, American Air Filter, AMP Inc., International Flavors & Fragrances, and Becton, Dickinson.

In the blue-chip sector, American Telephone, selling ex-dividend, slipped 1/8 to 46. Also easing 1/8 were General Motors, International Paper, Woolworth, Bethlehem Steel and Goodyear.

Penn Central Gets New Chief
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—Directors of Penn Central Co. elected Gaylord P. Harwell chairman, president and chief executive officer, effective Sept. 1, to succeed Paul A. Gorman who resigned Aug. 11.

Archibald Johnson was named secretary-treasurer, also effective Sept. 1, to succeed Bayard H. Roberts as secretary and John H. Shaffer as treasurer.

German Surplus In Trade Shows Growth for Month
WIESBADEN, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—West Germany's trade surplus rose to 1.98 billion marks ($545.9 million) last month from 1.136 billion in June and 1.655 billion in July last year, the Federal Statistical Office said.

But in the first seven months this year, the surplus declined to 8,207 billion marks ($2,256 billion) from 8,343 billion in the same 1969 period.

Imports Climb
In the first seven months of the year, imports rose 12 percent from the same 1969 period to 62.9 billion marks, while exports rose 11 percent to 71.2 billion.

Imports in July fell 3 percent from June levels to 8.29 billion marks but were 8 percent over the 8.58 billion marks in July last year.

July exports rose 5 percent from June to 11.29 billion marks and were 10 percent above the 10.2 billion marks in July, 1969.

Mutual Funds in U.S. Show Growth in Assets
NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (Reuters).—U.S. Mutual fund assets rose 5.9 percent in July to $40.71 billion from $38.46 billion in June, the Investment Company Institute reported.

Sales in July were $306.3 million, down from June's $364.5 million, but redemptions also eased, to $192.8 million from $197.0 million. Liquid assets at end-July were $4.8 billion, or 11.8 percent of assets, versus $4.4 billion or 11.4 percent in June, the institute said.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

Obviously South has excellent chances of making four spades on the diagrammed deal, but to find the "sure trick" play that guarantees the contract against any distribution is not easy. An opening bid of four spades is normal enough with the South hand, but this preemptive action might be made with a much weaker holding, especially in a favorable vulnerability situation. Some experts would, therefore, open one spade and reach the same final contract after a two-club response by North.

The opening lead is the diamond king, and South must decide what to do next. As the cards lie, he can make the contract by leading to the club ace and ruffing out East's king, using a trump entry to dummy subsequently. But that play could fail if West held the club king, for the declarer might lose a club, a spade and two hearts. An immediate finesse of the club queen would also be risky, for there would be a similar danger of losing four tricks. As the cards lie, East would win and return a spade. West would win the spade king and give the declarer a guess by leading a heart.

West led the diamond king.

Another try is to lead a heart to the king at the second trick. But when East wins he plays a spade, and South eventually loses a spade and two more hearts.

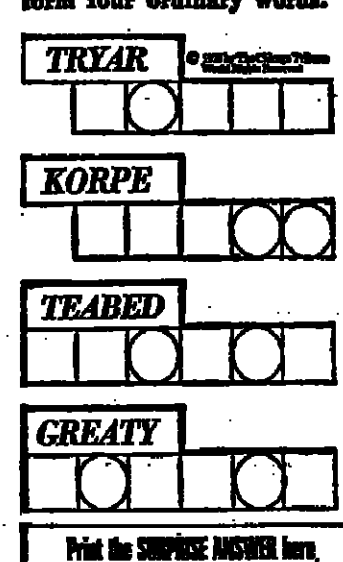

The play that makes sure of 10 tricks is to lead to the club ace at the second trick and play the heart four. If East wins this trick, South will have a heart trick coming to him. And if West wins, he cannot hurt South with a trump lead. However, the cards lie, the declarer will only be able to stop the third-round heart ruff in dummy at the cost of sacrificing the spade king.

THE TWILIGHT OF THE PRESIDENCY

By George E. Reedy. An NAL Book. The World Publishing Co. 205 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Max Frankel

WHY did Lyndon Johnson, an obviously shrewd politician, end up a political failure? We have to thank George Reedy, who worked with him as press secretary and special assistant before the heady climb and hapless fall, for posing the question as a vital issue of American government and no longer just a biographical curiosity.

Many, of course, deny the premise or the need for historical generalization. The Kennedy people doubted that Lyndon Johnson ever possessed much political skill; legislative manipulator, they scoffed, who fell into the White House and then tucked into Goldwater. The McCarthy people blamed Vietnam, plain and simple. The old Johnson circle of Texas and Capitol Hill saw tragedy in a betrayal of his heritage and common sense, in his deadly embrace of the civil-rights and labor crowds up North. The Johnson loyalists who went down with the ship accused the traitors' judgment that he knowingly chose the unpatriotic course because it was right, and that his heroism passed unnoticed because he lacked style, spoke in a Southern drawl and incurred the opposition of an ignorant and biased communications industry.

Reedy's alarming answer, however, in one of the most thoughtful and stimulating essays on American government, is that the imperial fortress we call the White House is bound to deny the occupant all contact with reality, to encourage his most immature impulses, to deprive him of all normal sense of life in America and to cheat him even of the chance to learn from his mistakes.

We designed the office, Reedy says, when we thought the nation needed stability more than flexibility, endowed it with monarchical powers, and then, in misguided deference to its burdens, sealed off the throne room from real contact with rival power, including the will of the people. It is only an inference, but an inescapable one, he concludes, "that the White House is an institution which dulls the sensitivity of political men and ultimately reduces them to bungling amateurs in their basic craft—the art of politics."

Reedy exempts Franklin Roosevelt because he seemed somehow capable of learning from error and keeping his eyes open in such a turmoil of rivalries and infighting from after this sanctified environment could still seep through to his intuitions. I suspect that he exempts Roosevelt also because that is his private way of telling Lyndon Johnson that he failed to measure up to his idol and failed to grasp his methods. Indeed, some might say that Reedy's whole thesis is a coy copout, a puffed up generalization to make more genteel his scathing attack on the man he served as aide in the Senate and press secretary and adviser at the White House. But I accept the thesis as a far sighted and enlightening portrayal of whole institution of the presidency.

Reedy, too, reigned American society, sadly ignorant of our social tensions, Reedy's regal popularity did make him any less the sliding toward war in Asia protect his hold on the seat and mistakenly saw Khrushchev in a game of perilous chess around the Aid Richard Nixon, for a everyman, pretensions, he convincingly refuted the thesis. His policies in Asia reflect not what the people clearly want but only what they might tolerate response to public outcry Cambodia and Kent pro not an earnest study of passions now loose in this but only a rush to put or public-relations fire.

"There is a deep-seated man tendency to confuse happy news with un events and to assume if the news can be altered, the events," Reedy writes, reality is that a President no press problems (except a few minor administrative technicalities), but he does political problems. All of are reflected in their most form by the press.

no President can find it his ego to concede that he failed in any degree without public. It is far more apt to blame his failures or press because his problems can be attributed to a copy.

Where Prince Spiro can King Richard be a hind?

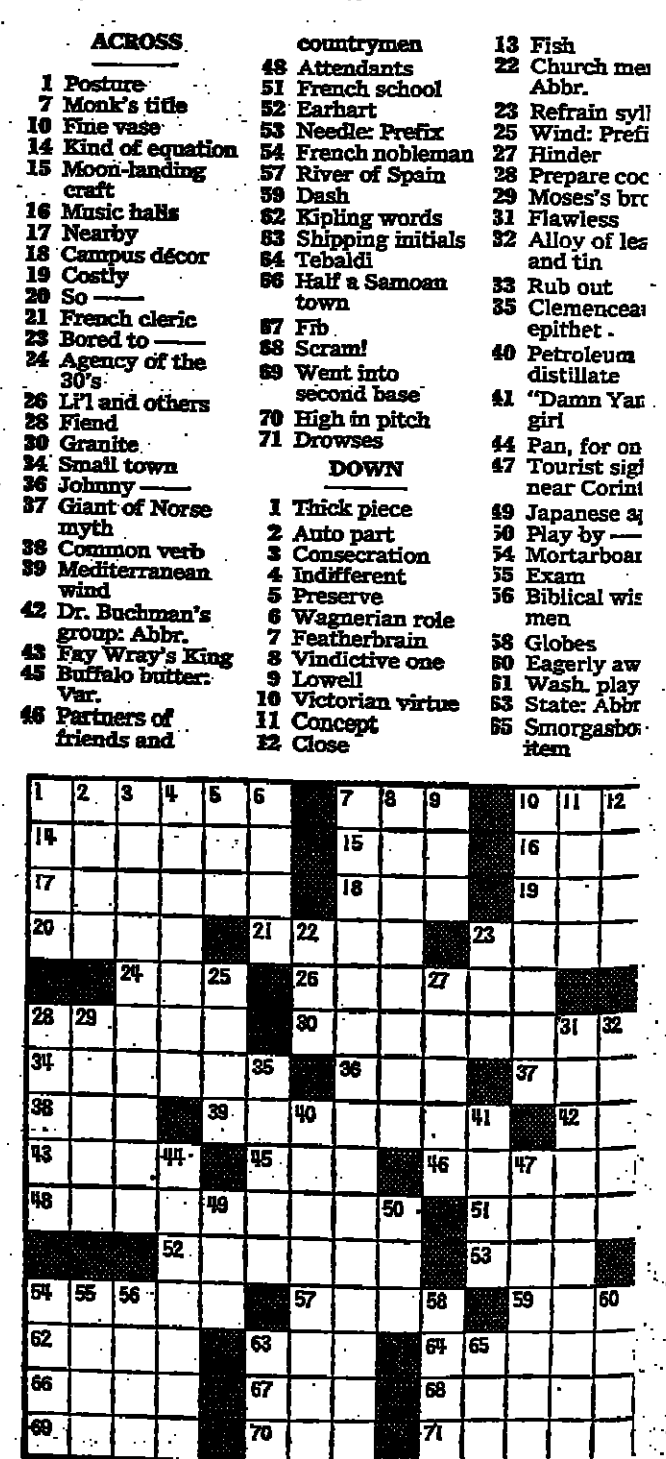

The signs of opposition press and television evoke stant shock, Reedy writes, cause White House maneuvers almost always the throne, because the is both impotent and impl because even dissenting tors address the sovereign deferential, almost apologetic and because the machine is airily left to between quadrilateral riles polls.

Reedy shows that de are therefore reached in unreal chamber wherein king loses all sense of men's passions, problems, egos, and forgets even it is like to call a plumber, a car, shop for groceries (yelled at by someone angry this sanctified environment itself becomes a necessity and the most important a problem, the number of minds at on it. But Reedy does know what to do. He is deeply pessimistic and gloomily convinced that out of defying mortals makes bution certain.

Noverraz Replaces Delfour at Helm

Change of France's Skipper Causes a One-Man Mutiny

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 25 (UPI)—A minor mutiny broke out today in the crew of France's Cup elimination race boat, the Grelot II, when the skipper, Noverraz, replaced Delfour at the helm.

Delfour, 35, was the skipper of the crew, but he was replaced by Noverraz, 32, who was named as skipper of the French boat because of his experience in the first race on a technical error of the best-of-seven series last Friday to Grelot II.

Except for Grelot II, and the addition of Francois Rich, son of the Grelot II's skipper, Noverraz said today, "I have sailed with Mr. Noverraz once and I do not think it is a good idea that I sail with him again."

Grelot II, whose name was on the crew list originally posted on the door of the French boat, was replaced by Daniel Saulnier. Intense and often bitter rivalry has been reported among the three French crews here preparing for the Cup race.

Valiant Is Outsailed By Intrepid in Trial

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 25 (AP)—Intrepid took the lead in the first trial of the America's Cup race today in the final trials to determine this year's defender for the America's Cup.

The victory was Intrepid's second in three races between the two boats and her fifth against one of the best in the final trials which started one week ago. Valiant is now 4-2.

Weatherly and Heritage, the other two boats which started the final trials, have been eliminated by the New York Yacht Club's America's Cup Committee.

Alworth Retires From Retiring Joins Chargers

IRVINE, Calif., Aug. 25 (UPI)—All-pro receiver Lance Alworth has reported to the training camp of the San Diego Chargers after having announced his retirement at the start of preseason practice.

"I just want to play and I'm happy to be back," said Alworth, describing himself as in good physical condition after working out regularly at home in San Diego.

General manager Sid Gillman said, "We are delighted to have Lance back. There has been no readjustment of any type to his existing contract."

Chargers, On TDs In Last Period, Defeat Bears

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 25 (AP)—The San Diego Chargers won a fourth-quarter touchdown in a night to lead the San Diego Chargers to a 14-9 victory over the Chicago Bears in a National Football League preseason game.

Post's run with 3:16 left in the game, capped a 72-yard drive engineered by second-year quarterback Marty Domer.

In the first meeting between the two teams, watched by 42,533 in San Diego Stadium, the Chargers overcame a 3-0 Bears' lead with two last-period touchdowns.

Namath, Ali Recognized as Anti-Heroes

By Robert Lipyte

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (NYT)—Mickey Mantle, last seen on television, returns to baseball next week as a Yankee coach. For some people there must be a kind of reassurance in that: Mantle back in pinstripes, and Joe Louis bused and strung out and in need of charity benefits, or Jack Dempsey sitting eternally in the front window of his Broadway restaurant are sports heroes who never truly succeeded outside the arena.

There should be no shame in this, nor any pride, either, yet the generation's two most controversial athletes, Joe Namath and Muhammad Ali, are attacked or defended precisely because each perceives that his value to himself depends on stirring out of the pit and making a life before all the rules is wrong out of him.

Namath, in recent weeks, has been threatening to retire. He said he does not want to play football anymore, and even after he rejoined the Jets last week he said he doubted if he could play. Ali, excited from the ring for more than three years now, appears closer than ever to a fight after court rulings in favor of conscientious objection and of his suit for a boxing license in this state.

Namath and Ali have almost ceased to exist as human beings to many people who tag them and label them, use them as symbols of the age to prove that American society is doomed or immoral. Neither Namath nor Ali is particularly complex or even always interesting, yet each bears the gift of a brain taking talent and the sense that it is his alone to save or squander.

Anti-Heroes Ironically, those who find Namath and Ali anti-heroes and unfit examples for American youth tend to embrace alcoholics, neurotics, gamblers and phubandiers who have the grace to conceal their infirmities.

Yet here are Namath and Ali, each of whom respects his mother, stays in reasonably good shape, generally tells the truth and almost always gives the customer his money's worth—what is everyone getting so upset about?

People seem to think that sports is a sacred corner and those privileged to dwell there have greater responsibilities to the public than any elected officials or business leaders. A child's growth may be unaffected by murder, embezzlement and blatant opportunism on the part of those who directly affect his life, but he will surely be stunted by Namath's hair. No less a philosopher than Alex Karras, in an unusual Sport magazine interview, commented trustily on the athlete as example:

"There's a guy who's 40 years old, who lives up in Lansing. Because athletics is used in this country as a form of preventive detention for many adolescents, some people believe it is essential that top athletes act grateful for the opportunity to play. Ali's pronouncement after winning the title, 'I don't have to be what you want me to be,' was partly in response to a threat by the promotion to cancel the fight unless he publicly renounced the Black Muslims. It was a warning bell of the coming changes in the behavior of athletes—collective demands, racial and political militancy, a freedom of style."

Namath and Ali spent their youths in fierce dedication to their talents, but were ultimately promoted as entertainment stars. Each brought prosperity to his sport, and each has been criticized for his own financial demands. Finally, each has hit the headlines, the media that helped build him up. Said Namath in a Playboy magazine interview some months ago, discussing a nationally front page story about drunk and reckless driving charges that were later dropped:

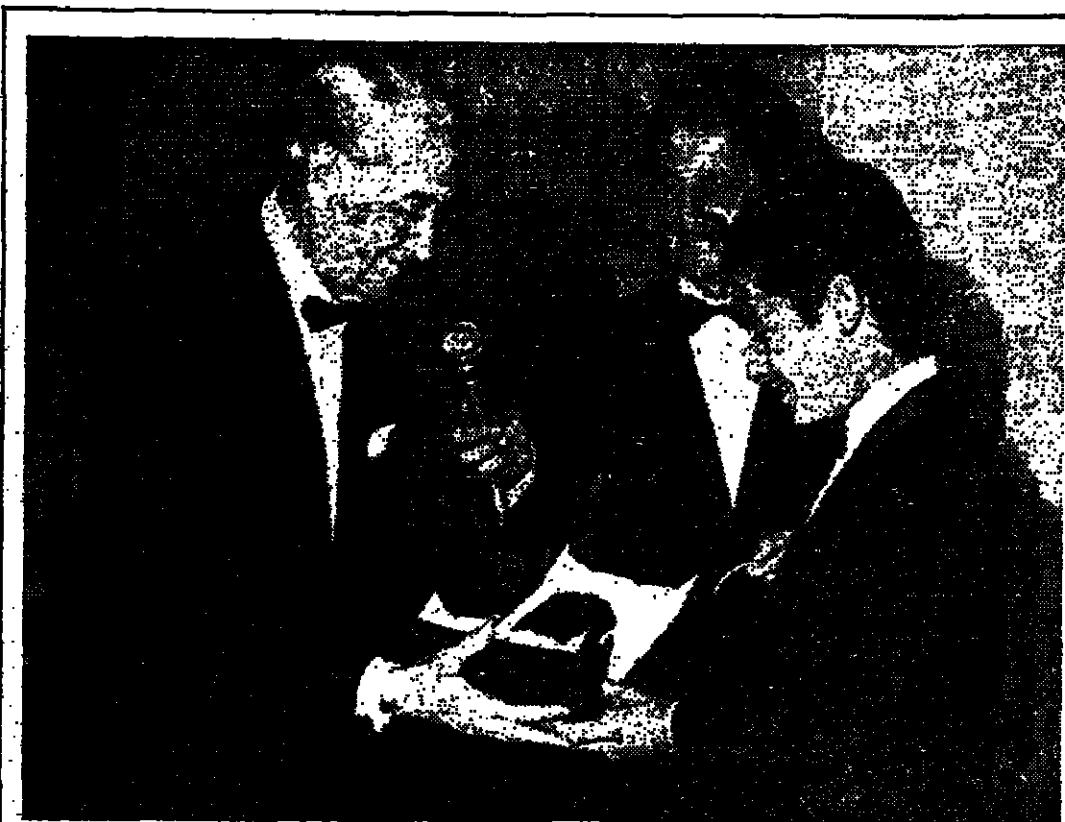

"I always think of it like the Pueblo thing—how innocent we were and what bad odds they were to capture our ship, but five months later, on the third page of The New York Times, about the sixth column over and four lines from the bottom, you find out that the Pueblo was spying out the North Koreans, just as they claimed. Well, that's what papers are like, so why should you believe what they print?"

Mrs. Court's physical prowess and strength—as much as her unquestioned skill—are responsible for her success. After a special series of tests on Margaret, conducted for the London Times Human Biochemical Laboratory, Dr. Reginald Whitney said:

"I would be advised on the physique and strength coaches should be looking for in aspiring tennis players, I would go for a tall woman like Margaret because she starts by being stronger. In many characteristics, other than her size, Margaret resembles other women athletes but she is far stronger in the right hand and in the strength of her leg action than any other woman we have tested."

Mrs. Court was tested for 1 1/2 hours on a grip dynamometer and other machines. Here are some results compared with those of other tests and Dr. Whitney's comments:

Hand length 6 1/2 in. 6-7 1/2 in. Palm breadth 3 1/2 in. 3 1/2-3 3/4 in. Mrs. Court's Right Hand Left Hand Head Length 21 1/2 in. 21 1/2 in. Head Breadth 5 1/2 in. 5 1/2 in. Royals Laugh Last in Beating Yanks

By Murray Chass

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 25 (NYT)—A not-so-funny thing kept happening to the Kansas City Royals this season—they kept losing to Baltimore and New York.

They lost to the Yankees in the first game of the season, and they lost to the Yankees in the second game of the season. They lost to the Yankees in the third game of the season, and they lost to the Yankees in the fourth game of the season.

They lost to the Yankees in the fifth game of the season, and they lost to the Yankees in the sixth game of the season. They lost to the Yankees in the seventh game of the season, and they lost to the Yankees in the eighth game of the season.

World University Games to Open Today

TURIN, Italy, Aug. 25 (UPI).

The World University Games, a kind of kid brother to the Olympics, is coming back home after 11 years and it again looks like another sports showdown between the United States and Russia.

The games open tomorrow and last 12 days, ending Sept. 6. The Games—competitors are limited to university or college students—began in Turin in 1959 and except for 1969 has been held every two years since.

Ailing Lorborg Told to Rest

BOSTON, Aug. 25 (AP)—

The Boston Red Sox have announced that Jim Lorborg, the sore-armed pitcher who was sent to the minor leagues two weeks ago, continued to have arm trouble and would sit out the rest of the season.

A club spokesman said the 1967 Cy Young Award winner had been ordered to rest for the remainder of the summer, then report to Sarasota.

Mrs. Court Shows Strong Tennis Game

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (NYT)—For the past decade, Mrs. Margaret Court has been the most powerful woman in the world and in the United States Open championships on Sept. 2 through 13, she will attempt to complete a grand slam.

Mrs. Court is a big girl with a good pair of legs, relatively long arms and wider hands than average... but she's no Amazonian.

These characteristics undoubtedly have a pronounced effect on her opponents, who feel dwarfed by her size and strength. They also enable her to see more of the court and to serve from a greater height. They enable her to cover the net and kill most smashes.

After a special series of tests on Margaret, conducted for the London Times Human Biochemical Laboratory, Dr. Reginald Whitney said:

"I would be advised on the physique and strength coaches should be looking for in aspiring tennis players, I would go for a tall woman like Margaret because she starts by being stronger. Casper Wins Avco By Three With 277

By Lincoln A. Werden

SUTTON, Mass., Aug. 25 (NYT)—Billy Casper sat in his hotel room Sunday when the final round was washed out and played gin rummy. Under sunny skies yesterday, Casper shot a 69 and won the Avco golf tournament by three strokes with an 11-under-par total of 277.

"I enjoyed yesterday's rain," said Casper after receiving the $32,000 check at the Pleasant Valley Country Club. "It was my first day off in two months."

The reward was for his fourth triumph, twice as many as anyone else has scored on the pro circuit this season. It also established him as the year's leading money winner, with earnings of $139,563, enabling him to displace Jack Nicklaus, an absentee here, who has won $134,880.

Casper's final round of 69, three under par, indicated that the 35-year-old Californian, who had complained of disturbing noises on the course Saturday, was generally relaxed.

"I hit good shots, I hit good putts and there wasn't any noise, no slamming doors," he said. While Rod Pumphrey equaled the tour's low of 66 and finished in a second-place tie with Tom Weiskopf at 280 in this $180,000 event, Dan Sikes, the first-round leader with 68, dropped to a tie for ninth at 282. Sikes had trailed Casper by one stroke with nine holes to go, but was disturbed by some gallery actions.

Sikes, who was paired with Casper, had to stop at the 17th before hitting an approach when a paper cup from a spectator tumbled near him. Marshals also had to clear enthusiastic spectators from surrounding him as he played and Sikes wound up with a loud 73.

Expatriate Blues

By Russell Baker

LONDON.—Who should we run into outside Madame Tussaud's but Harry, the well-known expatriate. Harry, you may recall, is the excessively conscientious semantist who left America because he did not, in any sense of the word that satisfied his respect for verbal precision, love it. "I liked America," he explained once, "I enjoyed it. I respected it. I took a great deal of pleasure in it, and I was thrilled with the nationalistic pride to the spirit of playing of American martial arts, but I had to be honest with myself: none of these feelings was love. Harry realized that due to the incomplete state of his emotional relationship with America, there was nothing he could do in good conscience but leave it. Unless, of course, he wanted to be in contempt of bumper stickers. He has since lived here for some time, not altogether happily. He missed certain things to which he had become accustomed and which could be found only at home. He was, he said, homesick for a television set which, when turned on, produced extraordinary dialogues about laundry and the more efficient cleansing of the bodily cavities, dialogues conducted between terrifying women gushing with insincere enthusiasm.

"But surely there is ample gushing on British commercial TV, Harry."

"Here they don't even make the effort to conceal their insincerity," he said.

"What else are you homesick for, Harry?"

"I miss the spectacle of huge, overfed kids dressed like bums and beggars, with hair down to the clavicle and . . ."

"Oh come on, Harry. Piccadilly Circus is filled with kids like that."

"But not driving $5,000 cars to the Wimpie Bar for Brunch-burgers and milk shakes," he said.

Harry went on. He was becoming sentimental. "Do you know how long it's been since I've heard one person call another pig?"

Bucher Criticizes Navy — But Wants to Stay In

By Warren L. Nelson

WASHINGTON (UPI).—Twenty months after being released from captivity in North Korea, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the spy ship Pueblo, has become an author, regained the weight he lost in prison and developed a paunch.

His growing bay window is not unexpected for a man of 43. The book (HIT, Aug. 19) is something else again. In it, the officer who hopes he still has a career in the Navy, argues that it was Navy bungling that led to the capture of the USS Pueblo on Jan. 23, 1968.

"Bucher's My Story" was published this month by Doubleday. To promote it, Cmdr. Bucher took leave and came to Washington where he spent two hours in the Pentagon book store one day autographing copies for long lines of the curious.

He was unable to resist the temptation to inscribe "Go Navy!" in copies bought by uniformed Army and Air Force officers.

In an interview with UPI, Cmdr. Bucher said a combination of incompetent naval officers and a bureaucracy that would not bend led to the capture of the Pueblo and its 83 officers and men.

Although the military currently is under fire for oversteering, Cmdr. Bucher said one problem with the spy ship program was that it was run on a shoestring. The graying commander said some unknown person floated the initial idea for dispatching ships weighed down with intricate electronic gear to listen in on Soviet radio and radar frequencies. Then a staff study was made and the plan approved at the highest level. The plan was titled a "minimum-risk operation" since the ships always would remain in international waters and the Soviets respected the freedom of the seas.

Even more important: The Russians operated similar electronic spy ships off the American coast. The U.S. planners reasoned that the Russians would never touch an American spy ship because unarmed Soviet counterparts would be susceptible to retaliation.

Later the spy ship mission was changed to include nosing around off the Chinese and North Korean coasts. This created risks which had not been envisioned in the original staff study. "But no one reworked the staff study," Cmdr. Bucher said. "It was assumed that since approval came from high up in the joint chiefs of staff that they knew what they were doing."

Cmdr. Bucher said that when he was given command of the Pueblo he asked that the "minimum risk" evaluation be changed and that protective measures be taken, including installation of equipment to destroy classified documents quickly, and a reduction in the tremendous volume of secret papers carried aboard ship.

"Every recommendation I made was put into effect after our capture," Cmdr. Bucher said. "It was the old closing-the-barn-door routine."

He lost a lot of weight in a North Korean prison, and returned home a gaunt shadow of the man who played football in his days at Boys Town, Neb. But in the 20 months since his release he has regained the lost poundage and then some.

"That's my fault," said his wife, Rose, pointing to the paunch. "That's a lotta beer," said the commander.

At the Pentagon book store, managers counted more than 1,200 people entering the store in the first hour. Some 30,000 people work in the Pentagon. Hundreds of people just stood and gawked at the obscure naval commander now turned celebrity. Many brought over books to be autographed, shook Cmdr. Bucher's hand and wished him good luck.

"I was with you all the way," said one woman.

"I liked the way you handled the situation," said a man.

But all was not sweetness and light. One bystander asked her companion, "Should we buy a book?"

"No, no," was the other woman's reply. "He's a traitor."

Cmdr. Bucher still believes that the United States made a mistake in not retaliating against the North Koreans immediately after they seized the lightly armed Pueblo. He said servicemen expect the government to back them up when they are in trouble and U.S. failure to act in this case was a tremendous blow to morale.

He said he knew of "a number of aviators who turned in their wings and made it clear they were thoroughly disgusted—and that doesn't mean they were spilling for a fight."

Cmdr. Bucher has rapidly become proficient at the autograph business, signing "best wishes" and "warmest regards" to books held out by smiling strangers. It is a far cry from the grim months in a small Korean prison when he and his men used the "Hawaiian good luck sign."

In his book, Cmdr. Bucher tells the story of the "Hawaiian good luck sign"—an upraised fist with the middle finger extended. This familiar U.S. gesture was unknown in North Korea and the Pueblo crewmen told their captors it meant "good luck" in Hawaiian. A famous picture released by the North Koreans showed a number of sailors with their middle fingers extended to give the lie to the happy smiles that they were ordered by their captors to display.

However, shortly before their release, a copy of Time magazine with the picture and a caption saying the finger sign proved the photo to be other than what the North Koreans claimed. Made its way to their captors. "For a week the officers and crew got the roughest beatings and kickings they were to suffer in their entire captivity. That ended the 'Hawaiian good luck sign' game."

Assignment

Cmdr. Bucher is now assigned to the Naval Postgraduate School at Monterey, Calif., taking a management course that will earn him a master's degree. However, in March he was put on limited duty for six months by a medical board as a result of the malnutrition, beatings and strain of his ordeal.

He will soon go before the medical board again. How he fares there may determine the course of his naval career. He could be given disability retirement. Asked if he will have a career in the Navy in the wake of the Pueblo case and his own criticism of the Navy hierarchy, Cmdr. Bucher said, "I hope so. I'm still a highly qualified naval officer."

It remains to be seen if the Navy feels the same way about the man who wrote that the official inquiry into the Pueblo case "left a few holding the sack for the many who are gutless."

PEOPLE:

Two Pokes In Another Town

As previewed last weekend and reported briefly here yesterday, Monday's wedding of Peter Sellers and Miranda Quarry was just an old-fashioned affair, at least as far as the groom was concerned. A bit surprisingly, however, the somewhat flamboyant British comedian, 44, was upstaged in the ten-minute civil ceremony by his 30-year-old bride, step-daughter of former government minister and Cumbria Line director Lord Mancroft.

"Usually a mod dresser," reported UPI, "Sellers wore a conservative black pinstripe suit, plain blue shirt and solid red tie." UPI's salt-and-pepper hair combed down over his collar, added UPI somewhat gratuitously. So what do you expect from Sellers, paprika? Miranda, meanwhile, sported a rich puce-colored gypsy-style maxi-dress with slightly plunging black bodice, a black velvet hat with floppy brim and flowing puce scarf, high black boots, two wedding rings ("one is Russian and symbolizes love, fidelity and happiness; the second is platinum, which goes with my engagement ring") and a pair of Pekingese dogs called Thomasina and Taffeta described by their mistress as "my bridesmaids."

"They were very quiet during the ceremony," said London registrar Donald Boreham, who performed the ceremony. "We tolerate well-behaved and polite guests, but there are limits," he added. "My predecessor declined to marry a couple until they took away a large paper bag at their feet. In the bag was a cobra."

Back to the bridesmaids, though: Miranda affirmed that "I take them everywhere, just everywhere," presumably including the ten-day honeymoon cruise aboard Sellers' yacht to the south of France starting this weekend. To Peter, Miranda, Thomasina and Taffeta, then, bon voyage and best wishes, and forgive us if we are reminded of a particularly poignant vignette from Irwin Shaw's "Two Weeks in Another Town."

In the novel, actor Jack Andrus has just married actress Carlotta Lee, whose most faithful companion was "a huge Boston shepherd (occasionally called Buster but usually referred to as 'the golden dog') that she took with her almost everywhere."

"Buster," writes Shaw, "had been the occasion of a dispute when Jack had just moved in. 'He's got to get out of the room," Jack had said, "while we're making love. 'He's very quiet,' Carlotta had said."

"I don't care how quiet he is," Jack said. "He lies there breathing and watching. I can never get over the feeling that he's either going to bite me in the ass or sell the story to the newspapers."

OFF THE BOARDS: Sir Laurence Olivier, 63, who was admitted to a London hospital three weeks ago with bronchial pneumonia, suffered a subsequent blood clot, and will make no theater appearances for the next few months. Sir Laurence, who will start on a month's vacation this weekend, was performing in "The Merchant of Venice" at Cambridge when he was stricken. (Robert Land will substitute for Olivier when the play returns to the Old Vic Oct. 16.) Since Sir Laurence is still scheduled to play Nathan Detroit in "Guys and Dolls" due to open towards the end of the year, the Old Vic appropriately has cancelled his three September appearances. "The Dance of Death," UPI. The J.C. for Raymond Dubois-Gache, 43, who admitted to Paris police that he had committed 3,000 lunch-hour burglaries in the last 14 years for an average annual income of $7,500. Asked by the gendarmes what he did when accosted during his 12-to-1 p.m. rummages through Paris offices, Dubois-Gache explained that his fool-proof ploy, a sort of Gallic version of "Jacks to Open" was to say: "I am looking for Miss Varlet," then split.

In answer to a number of queries, Martha Mott did not write "Gone With the Wind."
